Heavy-Calibre Bombs Dropped By Nazi Flyers

Four Air Raid Alarms Are Sounded In Quick Succession In London

BOMB FALLS INTO CROWDED STREET

Undisclosed Number Of Persons Killed And Injured In Attacks

By CHARLES A. SMITH

LONDON, Oct. 8.—An undisclosed number of persons were killed and injured in London today as Nazi raiders attacked with heavy-calibre bombs, causing four air raid alarms in quick succession.

Shortly after 1 p. m. (7 a. m. EST) it was reported that 10 German planes had been shot down, including two knocked from the air while flying over the Thames estuary.

The casualties and damage were caused during the first of the morning raids. This attack was followed by three more alarms, during which anti-aircraft fire was heard and British planes patrolled overhead but no action developed over the city. The fourth alarm, London's 184th since war began, ended after a brief period.

Strike At London

The attacking planes approached the city in the glare of the morning sun and then struck the London area at breakfast time.

Scattering singly from the heavy formations of German planes which earlier had penterated the coast, the Nazi airmen eluded British defenders long enough to drop a number of "eggs" on the city before R. A. F. fighters intercepted them and drove them away.

The raid caused the sounding of London's 181st alarm. A little earlier long-range guns on the British and French coasts engaged in a mighty artillery duel.

Assert Bulgaria May Join Rome-Berlin Axis

By GEORGE BALINT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BUDAPEST, Oct. 8.—Sensational changes appeared in store for the Balkans today as diplomatic quarters in Sofia declared Bulgaria may shortly join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

Should this develop as a sequel to yesterday's announcement that German troops are being sent into Rumania, informed Budapest quarters said, the next step might be a partition of Greece and possibly some territorial loss to Yugoslavia.

Greek, Bulgarian and Yugoslavian representatives may go to Rome soon for a settlement of Bulgarian and Albanian territorial claims. Bulgaria seeks an outlet through Thrace, northeastern Greece, to the Aegean sea while Italian-dominated Albania wants northwestern Greece and the Macedonians want either independence or union with Bulgaria. The latter would involve nipping off part of Yugoslavia.

It was reported that Greece is still opposed to any territorial concessions and has 150,000 troops on the Greco-Albanian frontier. But it was expected Greece would yield under pressure of Bulgaria and the Rome-Berlin axis.

Railways, factories, power works and harbors in the Reich were subjected to British attacks. Other bombers lashed at Belgium and Holland as well as France in raids which were reported to have lasted for hours.

Burma Road Is To Be Reopened

Japan Informed Of Great Britain's Decision To Reopen Route

CLOSING AGREEMENT NOT TO BE RENEWED

By LARRY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Oct. 8.—Invoking an immediate barrage of hostile press criticism, Great Britain today advised Japan of her decision to reopen the Burma road for arms shipments to China on October 17.

An official communique issued by the foreign office said:

"Sir Robert Craigie, the British ambassador to Japan, called upon Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka this morning.

"On instructions from his government, Sir Robert advised Mr. Matsuoka that Great Britain does not see its way clear to renew the British-Japanese agreement concerning closure of the Burma road when it expires on October 17."

The agreement was signed three months ago as a British gesture of appeasement to Japan.

Common Front

The influential Japan times ascribed Britain's decision to a desire to "save face" before China and to support the Chungking government as the only force resisting Japan "together with the United States."

"The decision of the British government," the newspaper said, "is unmistakable evidence that Britain is taking side with the United States in establishing a common front against this country.

"It represents the first expression of a policy which will be directed in the form of direct economic aid to Chungking in one direction and of economic pressure against Japan in the other.

"It is important to note in this connection that Foreign Minister Matsuoka in addressing the conference of provincial governors yesterday said:

"'Decision of Britain as regards the Burma road will be important as an indication of British policy toward us following conclusion of our treaty with Germany and Italy.'"

NEW ENGLAND TOUR TO FOLLOW

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Wendell Willkie tested his crowd appeal on Manhattan and Bronx audiences today preparatory to moving on to the alleged green pastures of New England where Republicans are more generally in power than in most states he has visited.

How Manhattan street crowds would react to the Republican presidential candidate was the first test of the day—and of the campaign—with a Broadway-Fifth Avenue-42nd Street parade scheduled and speeches in the heart of the garment center and at Father Duffy Square—really the northern end of Times Square.

Aides expressed the thought that if the crowds responded half as well as did New Jersey audiences yesterday, it would be a satisfactory performance.

Blasts At Hague

Crusading through Jersey yesterday, Willkie blasted Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City from Hoboken to Newark and at way stations on the circuitous route.

He termed Hague "A Puny Hitler," he spoke scathingly of "Pygmy Dictators," he talked of stuffed ballot boxes, burned records, and fraudulent registration lists and in the Jersey mayor's own community he drew vigorous applause and only a few boos.

In his Newark speech, he included National Democratic Chairman Edward J. Flynn in his denunciation of Hague with a reference to "the boss of the Bronx across the river" and tonight he goes into Flynn's territory to talk.

Labor Disorders Reported Breaking Out In Rumania

Troops Are Rushed To Various Localities To Suppress Strikes And Violence

By GEORGE BALINT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BUDAPEST, Oct. 8.—Labor disorders broke out today throughout Rumania, forcing the Bucharest government to rush troops to various localities to suppress strikes and other forms of violence.

The workers of a great many Rumanian industrial plants have struck, demanding 50 per cent more in wage increases to meet the rapidly mounting food prices, and in the coal district of Anina the workers are demanding a 100 per cent wage boost.

Authoritative quarters in Berlin characterized as "premature" a statement yesterday that German troops already were on the way into Rumania. Berlin said today Germany plans to dispatch a model army to Rumania soon "to rebuild and train" that country's army.

(The London Evening Standard, in a Belgrade dispatch, quoted military attaches in the Hungarian capital as stating that between 10,000 and 45,000 Nazi troops already are in Rumania. The first Germans to enter Rumania did so from North Transylvania, the newspaper said. They had been smuggled into Transylvania at the time of the Hungarian occupation.)

The semi-official Hungarian newspaper Pester Lloyd quoted Berlin sources as saying the dispatch of German troops to Rumania would be symbolically important as a demonstration of the efficiency of the Nazi guarantees to Bucharest.

Tigers-Reds In Final Game Of Big Series

Paul Derringer And Buck Newsom Opposing Hurlers In Closing Battle Of Classic

MORE THAN 30,000 FANS IN STANDS

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

CROSLEY FIELD, Cincinnati, Oct. 8.—A potential pitching masterpiece was arranged for the seventh and final game of the world series today with two of baseball's ablest right-handers facing each other for the payoff spin of the wheel—Buck Newsom of the Detroit Tigers vs. Duke Paul Derringer of the Cincinnati Reds.

Newsom officially was selected today by Manager Del Baker of the Tigers after a night of deliberation, thus bringing on a probable duel between 200-pounders—one a South Carolina eccentric who can be jovial and snarling by turns, that's Newsom, and the other a level-headed and level-eyed Kentuckian, Derringer.

Two Great Pitchers

Through the season Newsom won 21 games, and has won two so far in this series, to stand within a single step of that shrine housing the records of baseball's few winners of three games in a single series. He came back today from his classic three-hit shutout of Sunday with only one day's rest.

Derringer won 20 games during the season, then blew his first series start, but won on his second attempt last Saturday and, therefore entered the game a little fresher than the Tiger mainstay.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—President Roosevelt's special train en route to the capital was delayed briefly early this morning when reports of an attempted "plot" to dynamite the tracks were investigated by secret service operatives, railroad police and New York state troopers.

The train was halted 41 miles north of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., after a trackwalker reported he had seen a man plant a box under a trestle over which the train was to pass shortly afterwards.

The trackwalker telephoned to Albany and the train was flagged down before reaching the trestle. Investigation showed that the suspected "bomb" was a cheap jewelry box, evidently placed there by a tramp.

Churchill Tells House Of Nazi Air Raids' Toll

Says 8,500 Persons Killed And 13,000 Wounded In "Air Blitzkrieg"

HINTS BRITISH ARMY MAY INVADE

Asserts Mussolini Faces Good Many Surprises He Did Not Anticipate

By JAMES E. BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 8.—With a guarded hint that Britain someday may send an invading army against Nazi Germany Prime Minister Winston Churchill today laid bare the extent of casualties wrought by German bombing planes upon the British Isles and admitted that the naval fiasco at Dakar was due to "errors and accidents."

In a lengthy, restrained but frequently touching speech to the house of commons, Churchill made these salient points:

8,500 Killed By Air Raids

1—A total of 8,500 persons have been killed and 13,000 wounded since "air blitzkrieg" began, but the casualties are steadily diminishing.

2—Britain's home guard of 1,700,000 men will be trained steadily during the winter "not necessarily for action in these islands."

3—The German air war is proving a tremendous strain on the Nazi air force, and the R. A. F. continues to score notable victories.

4—Chancellor Hitler may yet launch his invasion—but he may be sending his troops "into the sea" instead of out upon it.

5—The Italo-German-Japanese pact was directed primarily against the United States, but against Russia as well. Churchill congratulated the United States for its refusal to be cowed by threats.

6—Premier Mussolini faces a good many surprises he did not expect when he thought it "safe and profitable to stab France in the back."

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 8.—Young Bobby Reed, aged eight, was still missing today as members of a posse continued their search for him through the thickets along the Ohio river bank, and others made arrangements to drag Eastvale dam. He disappeared Sunday evening.

Police, firemen, Boy Scouts and volunteers took up the search after the youngster's parents, worried because he had not returned from a hike, notified authorities. His two young companions said he left them about 10 blocks from his home and crossed the top of the Eastvale dam to the other side of the river.

Like a seesaw across a hemlock log, the Tigers and Reds have been in and out, first one would win then the other one, a case of turn and turn about. Today they meet and there's just one answer, which ever comes out with the winning camp, is in and over the series winner, the winner today is the series champ. You pays your dough and you makes your decision, you bet on Cincy or else Detroit, and whoever wins it will be a battle. The final clashup of the American sport. So place your bets, and decide the winner, it makes no difference, I'd say to me, they're both good teams with a lot of sportsmen, the weather is bright and its sixty three.

The agreement was signed three months ago as a British gesture of appeasement to Japan.

Common Front

The influential Japan times ascribed Britain's decision to a desire to "save face" before China and to support the Chungking government as the only force resisting Japan "together with the United States."

"The decision of the British government," the newspaper said, 'is unmistakable evidence that Britain is taking side with the United States in establishing a common front against this country.

"It represents the first expression of a policy which will be directed in the form of direct economic aid to Chungking in one direction and of economic pressure against Japan in the other.

"It is important to note in this connection that Foreign Minister Matsuoka in addressing the conference of provincial governors yesterday said:

"'Decision of Britain as regards the Burma road will be important as an indication of British policy toward us following conclusion of our treaty with Germany and Italy.'"

Willkie Tours New York City

Scheduled For Numerous Speeches In Metropolis During Day

NEW ENGLAND TOUR TO FOLLOW

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Wendell Willkie tested his crowd appeal on Manhattan and Bronx audiences today preparatory to moving on to the alleged green pastures of New England where Republicans are more generally in power than in most states he has visited.

How Manhattan street crowds would react to the Republican presidential candidate was the first test of the day—and of the campaign—with a Broadway-Fifth Avenue-42nd Street parade scheduled and speeches in the heart of the garment center and at Father Duffy Square—really the northern end of Times Square.

Aides expressed the thought that if the crowds responded half as well as did New Jersey audiences yesterday, it would be a satisfactory performance.

Blasts At Hague

Crusading through Jersey yesterday, Willkie blasted Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City from Hoboken to Newark and at way stations on the circuitous route.

He termed Hague "A Puny Hitler," he spoke scathingly of "Pygmy Dictators," he talked of stuffed ballot boxes, burned records, and fraudulent registration lists and in the Jersey mayor's own community he drew vigorous applause and only a few boos.

In his Newark speech, he included National Democratic Chairman Edward J. Flynn in his denunciation of Hague with a reference to "the boss of the Bronx across the river" and tonight he goes into Flynn's territory to talk.

Labor Disorders Reported Breaking Out In Rumania

Troops Are Rushed To Various Localities To Suppress Strikes And Violence

By GEORGE BALINT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BUDAPEST, Oct. 8.—Labor disorders broke out today throughout Rumania, forcing the Bucharest government to rush troops to various localities to suppress strikes and other forms of violence.

The workers of a great many Rumanian industrial plants have struck, demanding 50 per cent more in wage increases to meet the rapidly mounting food prices, and in the coal district of Anina the workers are demanding a 100 per cent wage boost.

Authoritative quarters in Berlin characteried as "premature" a statement yesterday that German troops already were on the way into Rumania. Berlin said today Germany plans to dispatch a model army to Rumania soon "to rebuild and train" that country's army.

(The London Evening Standard, in a Belgrade dispatch, quoted military attaches in the Hungarian capital as stating that between 10,000 and 45,000 Nazi troops already are in Rumania. The first Germans to enter Rumania did so from North Transylvania, the newspaper said. They had been smuggled into Transylvania at the time of the Hungarian occupation.)

The semi-official Hungarian newspaper Pester Lloyd quoted Berlin sources as saying the dispatch of German troops to Rumania would be symbolically important as a demonstration of the efficiency of the Nazi guarantees to Bucharest.

Tigers-Reds In Final Game Of Big Series

Paul Derringer And Buck Newsom Opposing Hurlers In Closing Battle Of Classic

MORE THAN 30,000 FANS IN STANDS

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

CROSLEY FIELD, Cincinnati, Oct. 8.—A potential pitching masterpiece was arranged for the seventh and final game of the world series today with two of baseball's ablest right-handers facing each other for the payoff spin of the wheel—Buck Newsom of the Detroit Tigers vs. Duke Paul Derringer of the Cincinnati Reds.

Newsom officially was selected today by Manager Del Baker of the Tigers after a night of deliberation, thus bringing on a probable duel between 200-pounders—one a South Carolina eccentric who can be jovial and snarling by turns, that's Newsom, and the other a level-headed and level-eyed Kentuckian, Derringer.

Two Great Pitchers

Through the season Newsom won 21 games, and has won two so far in this series, to stand within a single step of that shrine housing the records of baseball's few winners of three games in a single series. He came back today from his classic three-hit shutout of Sunday with only one day's rest.

Derringer won 20 games during the season, then blew his first series start, but won on his second attempt last Saturday and therefore entered the game a little fresher than the Tiger mainstay.

Investigation Made Of Reports Of Attempted "Plot" On Train

ROOSEVELT BACK AT WHITE HOUSE

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—President Roosevelt's special train en route to the capital was delayed briefly early this morning when reports of an attempted "plot" to dynamite the tracks were investigated by secret service operatives, railroad police and New York state troopers.

The train was halted 41 miles north of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., after a trackwalker reported he had seen a man plant a box under a trestle over which the train was to pass shortly afterwards.

The trackwalker telephoned to Albany and the train was flagged down before reaching the trestle. Investigation showed that the suspected "bomb" was a cheap jewelry box, evidently placed there by a tramp

The train then resumed its journey, arriving in Washington shortly before 9 a. m.

LONDON, Oct. 8—Carrying on the traditions of the famed World War Lafayette Escadrille, 34 American airmen today formed a new All-American squadron of the R. A. F. and soon will be fighting German sky raiders in the battle of Britain.

Patterned after the World War unit, the American group will be known as the "Eagle Squadron." Its formation was announced officially as King George gazetted a group of fliers who have already arrived in England and actively are undergoing the final touches of advanced fighting training.

Members wear the R. A. F. uniform with a special spread eagle insignia surmounting the letters "E. S." on the upper right arm. The design was approved personally by the King.

Churchill Tells House Of Nazi Air Raids' Toll

Says 8,500 Persons Killed And 13,000 Wounded In "Air Blitzkrieg"

HINTS BRITISH ARMY MAY INVADE

Asserts Mussolini Faces Good Many Surprises He Did Not Anticipate

By JAMES E. BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 8.—With a guarded hint that Britain someday may send an invading army against Nazi Germany Prime Minister Winston Churchill today laid bare the extent of casualties wrought by German bombing planes upon the British Isles and admitted that the naval fiasco at Dakar was due to "errors and accidents."

In a lengthy, restrained but frequently touching speech to the house of commons, Churchill made these salient points:

8,500 Killed By Air Raids

1—A total of 8,500 persons have been killed and 13,000 wounded since "air blitzkrieg" began, but the casualties are steadily diminishing.

2—Britain's home guard of 1,700,000 men will be trained steadily during the winter "not necessarily for action in these islands."

3—The German air war is proving a tremendous strain on the Nazi air force, and the R. A. F. continues to score notable victories.

4—Chancellor Hitler may yet launch his invasion—but he may be sending his troops "into the sea" instead of out upon it.

5—The Italo-German-Japanese pact was directed primarily against the United States, but against Russia as well. Churchill congratulated the United States for its refusal to be cowed by threats.

6—Premier Mussolini faces a good many surprises he did not expect when he thought it "safe and profitable to stab France in the back."

Beaver Falls Boy Is Still Missing

(International News Service)

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 8—Young Bobby Reed, aged eight, was still missing today as members of a posse continued their search for him through the thickets along the Ohio river bank, and others made arrangements to drag Eastvale dam. He disappeared Sunday evening.

Police, firemen, Boy Scouts and volunteers took up the search after the youngster's parents, worried because he had not returned from a hike, notified authorities. His two young companions said he left them about 10 blocks from his home and crossed the top of the Eastvale dam to the other side of the river.

Like a seesaw across a hemlock log, the Tigers and Reds have been in and out, first one would win then the other one, a case of turn and turn about. Today they meet and there's just one answer, which ever comes out with the winning camp, is in and over the series winner, the winner today is the series champ. You pays your dough and you makes your decision, you bet on Cincy or else Detroit, and whoever wins it will be a battle. The final clashup of the American sport. So place your bets, and decide the winner, it makes no difference, I'd say to me, they're both good teams with a lot of sportsmen, the weather is bright and its sixty three.

Sees Some Shortages In Germany Now

Lubricating Oil Supply Is Short

Copper, Tungsten And Tin Supply Also Running Low Is Belief

GASOLINE SUPPLY IS LIKELY ENOUGH

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON Oct. 8.—Germany today is "hard up" for lubricating oil copper, tungsten and tin—the warp and woof of Adolf Hitler's pattern of warfare.

This is the considered opinion of one of the government's foremost petroleum and mineral experts. He disclosed his view after a careful survey of confidential reports estimating Nazi stocks on hand and sources of supply. The conclusion was reached at the same time that the expert concluded that British declarations that Germany was running short of aviation gasoline was "wishful thinking."

Only if British bombers have crippled the giant German synthetic gasoline plants at Hanover, Luena, Stettin and several other heavily fortified areas is Germany short of gasoline, he said. Even at the outset of the war these great plants supplied more than 50 per cent of Germany's gasoline needs, he explained, and there is reason to believe production capacities have been materially increased.

British Claims

(Editor's note: Britain in London dispatches today claims that a "master plan" of bombing by its air force has resulted in extensive destruction of German gasoline and other production centers.)

But the story in lubricating oils, copper, tungsten and tin is different, it was explained.

"Already," said the government expert, who was not permitted to authorize use of his name, "there is evidence that Germany didn't look far enough ahead in providing lubricating oil, and a shortage in this is even more dangerous, if possible, than a shortage of gasoline."

Lubricating oil is vital in all power production, tanks, turbines and spinning equipment. Production of lubricating oil is a slow, tedious process, said the expert.

Dealing with copper, tungsten and tin, he added:

"Even now, I can't for the life of me see how Germany is getting sufficient copper. Her stock piles of tungsten and tin must have been seriously depleted. I don't want to make any rash statements, but it is my opinion that the world will soon see evidences of these shortages, and that the German military machine will slow down.

"I do not believe we will see a lack of aviation gasoline in Germany, unless the British bombers have done a much more devastating job than the British commanders themselves have revealed."

after midnight, he will have talked in the home district or community of every Democratic leader he has labled as affiliated with corrupt politics except Crump of Tennessee and he may visit Crump's state before his campaign ends.

Immediately after his nomination, Willkie began his blasts against Hague, Mayor Kelly of Chicago, Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, Flynn and Crump and he has followed up those attacks with speeches in the enemy camps.

New England is on his "white list" and he starts his tour in Connecticut governer by Raymond E. Baldwin who led the drift to Willkie for the presidential nomination by giving his state's 16 votes to the then dark horse candidate on the first and succeeding ballots at Philadelphia. Baldwin also seconded Willkie's nomination. Sam Pryor, vice chairman of the national committee and friend and advisor to the candidate also is a Connecticut resident.

Willkie starts officially for connecticut shortly after midnight tonight when he completes his last New York speech for the present, at 125th Street. Actually his train will be on a siding for the night and he will arrive in Stamford at 9 a. m.

There he leaves the train for an automobile, covering the entire state in an all-day drive which ends at New Haven where Willkie will speak in the arena at night and then reboard his train.

This train-at-night, automobile-in-the-daytime program will be maintained throughout the New England visit.

ASSERT BULGARIA MAY JOIN ROME & BERLIN

reported enroute to Rumania. German army officers who will act as instructors for Rumanian troops arrived in Bucharest yesterday, apparently to find barracks for the Nazi forces.

Several barracks in Bucharest have been evacuated to accommodate the Germans, who will be separated into units and equipped with every type of modern armament to enable them to train at least eight Rumanian divisions—about 120,000 men—it was reported.

The Germans will be garrisoned chiefly in the oil-producing zone around Polesti, Siriu and Brasov. In addition to protecting the oil fields and reorganizing the Rumanian army, the Nazis are expected to construct fortifications on the Black sea, which would become a danger-point should Turkey enter the war.

Despite divided Bulgarian public opinion, King Boris was represented as determined to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance. Bulgarian Minister of Agriculture Labrianoff is now in Berlin and is understood to be preparing an announcement of Bulgarian adherence to the pact. Upon his return to Sofia, Labrianoff is expected to take charge of the government in place of Premier Ivan Filoff.

and valor will be our only shield", Churchill was frank in admitting the Dakar fiasco, when "Free French" forces headed by General Charles De Gaulle and backed by the units of the British navy retired after a battle.

Declaring that neither the nation nor any individual "should ever hesitate in face of dangers because they appear to the imagination to be formidable," Churchill pointed out that when Britain entered the war, he expected the country to sustain air raid losses amounting to 3,000 killed and 12,000 wounded "night after night."

The prime minister brought solace to sufferers by announcing a compulsory nation-wide insurance against damage to property from enemy fire.

"Months have passed since Hitler turned his rage and malice against the civilian population of our great cities, particularly London," he said.

Reprisals

Referring to reprisals, Churchill said:

"Our object must be to inflict the maximum of harm upon war-making capacity of Germany.

"That is the only object we shall pursue.

"Although the British bombing force is much less numerous than the enemy's, I believe we have done a great deal more harm to Germany's war-making capacity than they have done to us.

"What has happened to the invasion which has been promised every month and every week since the beginning of July?

"Don't let us get lured into the supposition that the danger has passed. The enemy has certainly got prepared enough shipping and barges to throw half a million men on a single night on the salt water —or into it. (loud laughter)

Praises Morale

"The home guard, which now amounts to 1,700,000, must nurse their weapons and sharpen their bayonets. All through this winter, the training and building of a great army—not always necessarily to be confined to these islands—must go forward in a hardy and vigorous manner."

"One would think one had brought some great benefit to them instead of the blood, tears, toil and sweat which was all I ever promised them.

"On every side there is the cry of 'we can take it', but there is also the cry: 'give it 'em back!'"

pedestrians. The missile narrowly missed a church and an office building.

The whine of the bomb was the first indication that the high-flying raider was overhead and when they heard it the pedestrians ducked and scattered to doorways and others threw themselves flat on the ground.

Buildings hundreds of yards around were rocked and shaken by the concussion.

A second bomb demolished a group of buildings, including shops with apartments above and caused some casualties, including a number killed. This bomb smashed automobiles and a bus and littered the roadway with glass from hundreds of broken windows.

Rescue Work

Troop and civilians aided air raid precaution crews in treating the wounded and in ripping shutters from the closed fronts of shops for use as stretchers.

Trucks and other vehicles were pressed into service to rush victims to hospitals.

A third bomb hit a bus and crowds immediately rushed to the scene to rescue wounded passengers, who were placed on the glass-littered sidewalks until ambulances arrived. It appeared that all three bombs were dropped by one plane.

Another raider dropped a bomb on another crowded area, killing and wounding an undetermined number, including some who hastily took shelter in the doorways of office buildings and stores. It was feared still more were killed and injured in the cellar shelters of the district.

The second raider, however, was quickly intercepted by R. A. F. fighters and crowds, still not wholly recovered from the shock of the falling bombs, stood fascinated as they watched the ensuing air battle.

While the raiders, flying singly over the city, dropped their bombs, R. A. F. fighters broke up the main attacking formations at the edge of the London area.

section of the famed Robert Koch Institute, a nerve clinic in the university hospital and one maternity clinic—all in the northern section of the capital—also were reported hit.

Transportation Difficulties

It was said that the percentage of casualties was relatively high owing to transportation difficulties after the alarm sounded.

The raid demonstrated the city's new anti-aircraft defenses, which carried out a systematic form of fire while searchlight beams crisscrossed in an organized pattern which appeared to increase the difficulties of the raiders in approaching their targets.

The British planes kept at high altitudes with the exception of individual planes which dived occasionally to escape from a barrage of ground fire or drop flares.

Roof-top observers watched the death-struggle of one bomber which vainly tried to escape from searchlight beams.

With heavy shells bursting all around it, this plane dived from 10,000 to 1,000 feet into a hail of automatic gunfire which apparently damaged the controls or injured the pilot. The craft then swerved drunkenly and finally exploded from a direct hit.

Parts of the craft and the mangled bodies of the chew showered to the ground.

At the same time, informed German circles said that German planes were engaged in one of their heaviest night raids on London, using the new "hammer blow" technique devised by Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's air force.

Under the all-night battering, it was stated, huge fires were started in London and other sections of the British Isles also were attacked.

BRITISH MAKE HEAVY AIR RAIDS ON BERLIN

pered for a day and a night by soupy, bumpy skies, the newest raids marked the first day of Air Marshal Sir Charles Portal's leadership.

Portal, exponent of the strategy of heavy counter-thrusts in aerial warfare, took over duties as supreme commander of Britain's air force a few hours before the night bombers soared from their bases on intensified attacks of four countries.

The latest attacks, obviously made to smash German hopes for an invasion attempt, if any, were carried out in weather which the air ministry called "almost perfect" for invasion.

A terse communique, giving no details of the counter-assaults, stated:

"During the night, Royal air force attacks were made on military objectives in the Berlin area.

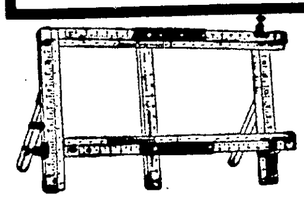

"Communications in various parts of Germany also were raided.

"Other attacks were made on channel ports and airdromes in German-occupied areas."

The year 1816 was popularly known as "the year without a summer," due to the fact that in the northern states there were frosts in every month of the year. This same condition prevailed in Great Britain, France, Spain, Italy and other parts of Europe.

Sees Some Shortages In Germany Now

Lubricating Oil Supply Is Short

Copper, Tungsten And Tin Supply Also Running Low Is Belief

GASOLINE SUPPLY IS LIKELY ENOUGH

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON Oct. 8.—Germany today is "hard up" for lubricating oil copper, tungsten and tin—the warp and woof of Adolf Hitler's pattern of warfare.

This is the considered opinion of one of the government's foremost petroleum and mineral experts. He disclosed his view after a careful survey of confidential reports estimating Nazi stocks on hand and sources of supply. The conclusion was reached at the same time that the expert concluded that British declarations that Germany was running short of aviation gasoline was "wishful thinking."

Only if British bombers have crippled the giant German synthetic gasoline plants at Hanover, Luena, Stettin and several other heavily fortified areas is Germany short of gasoline, he said. Even at the outset of the war these great plants supplied more than 50 per cent of Germany's gasoline needs, be explained, and there is reason to believe production capacities have been materially increased.

British Claims

(Editor's note: Britain in London dispatches today claims that a "master plan" of bombing by its air force has resulted in extensive destruction of German gasoline and other production centers.)

But the story in lubricating oils, copper, tungsten and tin is different, it was explained.

"Already," said the government expert, who was not permitted to authorize use of his name, "there is evidence that Germany didn't look far enough ahead in providing lubricating oil, and a shortage in this is even more dangerous, if possible, than a shortage of gasoline."

Lubricating oil is vital in all power production, tanks, turbines and spinning equipment. Production of lubricating oil is a slow, tedious process, said the expert.

Dealing with copper, tungsten and tin, he added:

"Even now, I can't for the life of me see how Germany is getting sufficient copper. Her stock piles of tungsten and tin must have been seriously depleted. I don't want to make any rash statements, but it is my opinion that the world will soon see evidences of these shortages, and that the German military machine will slow down.

"I do not believe we will see a lack of aviation gasoline in Germany, unless the British bombers have done a much more devastating job than the British commanders themselves have revealed."

after midnight, he will have talked in the home district or community of every Democratic leader he has labled as affiliated with corrupt politics except Crump of Tennessee and he may visit Crump's state before his campaign ends.

Immediately after his nomination, Willkie began his blasts against Hague, Mayor Kelly of Chicago, Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, Flynn and Crump and he has followed up those attacks with speeches in the enemy camps.

New England is on his "white list" and he starts his tour in Connecticut governer by Raymond E. Baldwin who led the drift to Willkie for the presidential nomination by giving his state's 16 votes to the then dark horse candidate on the first and succeeding ballots at Philadelphia. Baldwin also seconded Willkie's nomination. Sam Pryor, vice chairman of the national committee and friend and advisor to the candidate also is a Connecticut resident.

Willkie starts officially for connecticut shortly after midnight tonight when he completes his last New York speech for the present, at 125th Street. Actually his train will be on a siding for the night and he will arrive in Stamford at 9 a. m.

There he leaves the train for an automobile, covering the entire state in an all-day drive which ends at New Haven where Willkie will speak in the arena at night and then reboard his train.

This train-at-night, automobile-in-the-daytime program will be maintained throughout the New England visit.

ASSERT BULGARIA MAY JOIN ROME & BERLIN

reported enroute to Rumania. German army officers who will act as instructors for Rumanian troops arrived in Bucharest yesterday, apparently to find barracks for the Nazi forces.

Several barracks in Bucharest have been evacuated to accommodate the Germans, who will be separated into units and equipped with every type of modern armament to enable them to train at least eight Rumanian divisions—about 120,000 men—it was reported.

The Germans will be garrisoned chiefly in the oil-producing zone around Polesti, Siriu and Brasov. In addition to protecting the oil fields and reorganizing the Rumanian army, the Nazis are expected to construct fortifications on the Black sea, which would become a danger-point should Turkey enter the war.

Despite divided Bulgarian public opinion, King Boris was represented as determined to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance. Bulgarian Minister of Agriculture Labrianoff is now in Berlin and is understood to be preparing an announcement of Bulgarian adherence to the pact. Upon his return to Sofia, Labrianoff is expected to take charge of the government in place of Premier Ivan Filoff.

and valor will be our only shield", Churchill was frank in admitting the Dakar fiasco, when "Free French" forces headed by General Charles De Gaulle and backed by the units of the British navy retired after a battle.

Declaring that neither the nation nor any individual "should ever hesitate in face of dangers because they appear to the imagination to be formidable," Churchill pointed out that when Britain entered the war, he expected the country to sustain air raid losses amounting to 3,000 killed and 12,000 wounded "night after night."

The prime minister brought solace to sufferers by announcing a compulsory nation-wide insurance against damage to property from enemy fire.

"Months have passed since Hitler turned his rage and malice against the civilian population of our great cities, particularly London," he said.

Reprisals

Referring to reprisals, Churchill said:

"Our object must be to inflict the maximum of harm upon war-making capacity of Germany.

"That is the only object we shall pursue.

"Although the British bombing force is much less numerous than the enemy's, I believe we have done a great deal more harm to Germany's war-making capacity than they have done to us.

"What has happened to the invasion which has been promised every month and every week since the beginning of July?

"Don't let us get lured into the supposition that the danger has passed. The enemy has certainly got prepared enough shipping and barges to throw half a million men on a single night on the salt water—or into it. (loud laughter)

Praises Morale

"The home guard, which now amounts to 1,700,000, must nurse their weapons and sharpen their bayonets. All through this winter, the training and building of a great army—not always necessarily to be confined to these islands—must go forward in a hardy and vigorous manner."

"One would think one had brought some great benefit to them instead of the blood, tears, toil and sweat which was all I ever promised them.

"On every side there is the cry of 'we can take it', but there is also the cry: 'give it 'em back!'"

HEAVY-CALIBRE BOMBS DROPPED BY NAZI FLYERS

pedestrians. The missile narrowly missed a church and an office building.

The whine of the bomb was the first indication that the high-flying raider was overhead and when they heard it the pedestrians ducked and scattered to doorways and others threw themselves flat on the ground.

Buildings hundreds of yards around were rocked and shaken by the concussion.

A second bomb demolished a group of buildings, including shops with apartments above and caused some casualties, including a number killed. This bomb smashed automobiles and a bus and littered the roadway with glass from hundreds of broken windows.

Rescue Work

Troop and civilians aided air raid precaution crews in treating the wounded and in ripping shutters from the closed fronts of shops for use as stretchers.

Trucks and other vehicles were pressed into service to rush victims to hospitals.

A third bomb hit a bus and crowds immediately rushed to the scene to rescue wounded passengers, who were placed on the glass-litterd sidewalks until ambulances arrived. It appeared that all three bombs were dropped by one plane.

Another raider dropped a bomb on another crowded area, killing and wounding an undetermined number, including some who hastily took shelter in the doorways of office buildings and stores. It was feared still more were killed and injured in the cellar shelters of the district.

The second raider, however, was quickly intercepted by R. A. F. fighters and crowds, still not wholly recovered from the shock of the falling bombs, stood fascinated as they watched the ensuing air battle.

While the raiders, flying singly over the city, dropped their bombs, R. A. F. fighters broke up the main attacking formations at the edge of the London area.

section of the famed Robert Koch Institute, a nerve clinic in the university hospital and one maternity clinic—all in the northern section of the capital—also were reported hit.

Transportation Difficulties

It was said that the percentage of casualties was relatively high owing to transportation difficulties after the alarm sounded.

The raid demonstrated the city's new anti-aircraft defenses, which carried out a systematic form of fire while searchlight beams crisscrossed in an organized pattern which appeared to increase the difficulties of the raiders in approaching their targets.

The British planes kept at high altitudes with the exception of individual planes which dived occasionally to escape from a barrage of ground fire or drop flares.

Roof-top observers watched the death-struggle of one bomber which vainly tried to escape from searchlight beams.

With heavy shells bursting all around it, this plane dived from 10,000 to 1,000 feet into a hail of automatic gunfire which apparently damaged the controls or injured the pilot. The craft then swerved drunkenly and finally exploded from a direct hit.

Parts of the craft and the mangled bodies of the chew showered to the ground.

At the same time, informed German circles said that German planes were engaged in one of their heaviest night raids on London, using the new "hammer blow" technique devised by Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's air force.

Under the all-night battering, it was stated, huge fires were started in London and other sections of the British Isles also were attacked.

The president made no open bid for New York's 47 electoral votes but he motored through cheering crowds in Albany, Troy, Watervliet, Cohoes, Waterford, Stillwater, Schuylerville, Saratoga Springs, Latham, Mechanicville and Loudonville.

The chief executive will remain at his White House desk only for the next three days. BRITISH MAKE HEAVY AIR RAIDS ON BERLIN

pered for a day and a night by soupy, bumpy skies, the newest raids marked the first day of Air Marshal Sir Charles Portal's leadership.

Portal, exponent of the strategy of heavy counter-thrusts in aerial warfare, took over duties as supreme commander of Britain's air force a few hours before the night bombers soared from their bases on intensified attacks of four countries.

The latest attacks, obviously made to smash German hopes for an invasion attempt, if any, were carried out in weather which the air ministry called "almost perfect" for invasion.

A terse communique, giving no details of the counter-assaults, stated:

"During the night, Royal air force attacks were made on military objectives in the Berlin area.

"Communications in various parts of Germany also were raided.

"Other attacks were made on channel ports and airdromes in German-occupied areas."

The year 1816 was popularly known as "the year without a summer," due to the fact that in the northern states there were frosts in every month of the year. This same condition prevailed in Great Britain, France, Spain, Italy and other parts of Europe.

With the thought that sincere effort must be given by all in this present trying period, filled with uncertainty, to further insure that this year's work will measure up to the standards of the past 50—the goal of The Woman's Club throughout 1940-41, Mrs. John Elliott, president, officially opened the initial session of the club on Monday afternoon in the dining room of the First U. P. church on Glenmore boulevard.

Activities began with serving of a delicious chicken luncheon at 1 o'clock by a group of women of the church known as Unit Three, headed by Mrs. George Morrow, to members and guests numbering upwards of 125. The autumnal motif predominated in the floral centerpieces which adorned the long tables.

Mrs. J. J. McIlvaine pronounced the invocation and Mrs. James R. Green, speaker of the afternoon, led the flag salute.

During the serving, Paul Dingledy and Jack Houston presented "talking lantern slides", pertaining to the Community Chest drive of New Castle.

Recording Secretary Mrs. William Margraf gave a detailed account of the last stated meeting, and other reports were contributed by committee heads.

Program Chairman Mrs. Earl Ruby introduced as guest of the day, Mrs. James R. Green, who entertained in a pleasing manner with a review of a play.

Mrs. Green selected Clarence Day's book "Life With Father" which was made into a play by Russell Crouse and Howard Lindsay, one of the most popular stage productions in New York, running since November. She explained the three-act comedy, as the result of Clarence Day's scribbling about his father, who liked his meals on time, his bacon done to the desired crispness, and, no visiting relatives. Father, which part is taken by Mr. Lindsay, is not only the "backbone" of the Lindsay household but the "jaw bone". Mrs. Lindsay, who enacts the role of the wife and mother and known as Dorothy Stickney, is always the obedient, kind, sweet woman trying to keep her barking husband calmed down and the children in their place, so not to excite the master. The scenes take place during the 1880's in the lofty, colonial Lindsay homestead on Madison avenue in New York City, in the "morning room" of the household which is also used as the living room. The climax is reached when father, a person always so exacting, right living in his own opinion and firm at all times, recalls in a moment of weakness he has never been baptised and it is very likely he will not go to Heaven after all—and which oversight is triumphantly taken care of by Mrs. Lindsay, after much persuasion.

Mrs. Ruby expressed appreciation in behalf of the club for Mrs. Green's fine review, which was well received. She also praised the decorating committee, composed of Mrs. William Berkstresser, Mrs. O. E. Flora, Mrs. George R. Crawford, Mrs. Glenn Throop, Mrs. M. R. Hornung and Mrs. F. W. Cameron.

Co-hostesses for the occasion included Mrs. H. C. Dinsmore, Mrs. Clifford Young and Mrs. Wilfred Thomas.

The first meeting is the beginning of an interesting calendar year for The Woman's Club, as many fine features are in store. The October 21 meeting will deal with "The Charm of French Cathedrals" with Clarence Ward as the speaker. Mrs. E. V. Marvin and Mrs. E. F. Henderson will be hostesses.

NEWS VIEWS By DR. H. M. ROSEN

With the World Series and a flock of football games cluttering up our stadiums and coliseums these days, sports fans are drifting about the highways and byways with the dazed look of a prize fighter who has absorbed one too many punches on the chin. As they go, they mumble scores and statistics like a witch doctor repeating a little mumbo-jumbo. There are probably more bad guesses and worse alibis around this time of year than you could find in a dozen countries, but it's all in sport and this is one country where a man can still afford to guess wrong once in a while.

London reports that English girls are coloring their hair in shades of pink. I suppose U. S. femmes will be dyeing to see how it looks.

Your eyes deserve only the best of care—and you'll want only the most modern methods used to determine what is wrong with them. NEWS VIEWS

By DR. H. M. ROSEN

With the World Series and a flock of football games cluttering up our stadiums and coliseums these days, sports fans are drifting about the highways and byways with the dazed look of a prize fighter who has absorbed one too many punches on the chin. As they go, they mumble scores and statistics like a witch doctor repeating a little mumbo-jumbo. There are probably more bad guesses and worse alibis around this time of year than you could find in a dozen countries, but it's all in sport and this is one country where a man can still afford to guess wrong once in a while.

London reports that English girls are coloring their hair in shades of pink. I suppose U. S. femmes will be dyeing to see how it looks.

WHAT'S A BILLION DOLLARS, ANYWAY?

AMERICANS like to do big things in a big way, things that concern big figures. They are partial to millions and billions., especially billions. The word billions has become commonplace, particularly as applied to the nation's public debt of nearly $45,000,000,000, an increase of more than $22,000,000,000 in the last seven and a half years.

But not very many people ever stop to think what a billion dollars means, what it looks like and what it takes to pay it when it's a debt. A billion dollars is pretty hard to visualize.

Suppose you owed a billion dollars and wanted to pay it off at a rate of $1000 a day. Paying $1000 a day, 365 days in the year, it would take you 2739 years and eight months to get rid of the obligation.

And a debt of about $45,000,000,000? Paying at the same rate, $1000 a day, you'd have to feed the kitty for 123,287 years to get out from under, a metropolitan paper has figured out.

National indebtedness of billions for such needs as defense is unavoidable if the country is to be protected. But our debt of close to $45,000,000,000 was rolled up before the preparedness program began. Defense costs of $15,000,000,000 are still to be added to the debt.

High debts mean higher and higher taxes, tougher going to make family ends meet. It's a lot easier to roll up debts of billions than to pay them off. And in paying them off everybody is sure to get soaked.

Pennsylvania produces 100,000 gallons of maple syrup and 50,0000 pounds of sugar annually to rate fourth in the nation.

Pennsylvania farmers realize about $54,000,000 each year from poultry and eggs.

WHERE ACADEMIC FREEDOM STOPS

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's blunt talk at Columbia against the misuse of academic freedom comes at a good time. Days of crisis and danger in the nation invariably bring crackpots, theorists pinks, reds and what-have-you rushing toward the limelight. They're found on college faculties, too, spouting in the sacred name of "academic freedom" any line of talk they please.

Dr. Butler's thesis is simple. The colleges and universities of America have a job to do, defending and expounding democracy, our order of life, our system of liberty; defending our country in the classrooms and among the people generally.

If a pedagogue wants to take verbal pot-shots at any or all of this he should, in Dr. Butler's view, resign and do it outside the ivy-clad walls. Academic freedom, as Dr. Butler sees it, doesn't mean a "privilege—much less the right—to use the prestige, the authority and the influence of a university relationship" to tear down everything the university stands for.

There are exponents of academic freedom who think it gives complete license to shoot the works in any direction from the vantage point of a college professorship. Most Americans will heartily agree that Dr. Butler's limitation is perfectly sound and not an interference with anyboyd's real freedom at all.

POLITICAL LESSON IN FRENCH

The tragic example of France should not be lost on Americans.

It was not Marshal Weygand and his men that lost that fateful battle in June. The fall of France goes back to 1935 when Leon Blum, the Socialist doctrinaire, went into office on a wave of reform agitation and class warfare preached by a motley mass calling itself the Popular Front. Spain exhausted itself in civil war from the same cause.

France's New Deal resembled in many ways its American prototype, writes Norton Weob, veteran foreign correspondent, in National Business. Its aim was to lift up the underprivileged, whether they wanted to be lifted or not, to divide the wealth and acquire governmental control over big business.

A wave of sit-down strikes followed Blum's induction into office and the inauguration of his program. Hate of the workers toward those who had succeeded in life and accumulated property was fanned to a bitter flame. Workers were inflamed against farmers and all have-nots against haves. Collective bargaining was forced on industry, followed by compulsory arbitration of labor disputes.

A vast public works program was initiated. Public funds were spent at such a reckless pace that one financial crisis followed another in quick succession. The French New Dealers were applying the philosophy of American New Dealer Thurman Arnold, new Assistant Attorney General, who said:

> One of the reasons for the great strength of Hitler and Mussolini is the fact that they paid no attention to balancing the budget.

The certain result of all these follies was the slowing down of all production, the splitting up of the people into senseless class factions and the weakening of the nation.

France was destroyed by social reform.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

IF GROWING CHILD FUMBLES

During a form I was conducting in a Milwaukee school assembly a very tall eighth-grade boy rose and said: "It seems I'm always dropping and breaking things. My mother and father scold me and tell me I don't care. I do care. I try hard and get discouraged. Is there any hope for me to get better?"

"You see" I replied "your father and mother want to help you get over this awkwardness and they are worried about the cost of the things you break. They suppose they will help you by their methods. You and I don't believe they will. If I could talk to your parents I think I could help them see that when a boy grows fast as you do at your age, he is very awkward. By and by he gets better control of himself. You will I am sure. If I were you I would make myself move slowly when handling things easily dropped and broken. At some quiet time when you feel calm and your father and mother seem most kindly, I would sit down by them and say: 'Mother and Dad, I'm sorry I'm so awkward. I'm sorry I drop and break so many things. I do try hard to be careful. Please won't you be patient with me?"

Awkward Children

It is in early adolescence when extreme awkwardness is most common. Awkwardness may however, appear at any age. The other day a mother told me of a child of eight "always dropping and spilling things." Teachers complain of some children in the lower grades who are "so messy with everything." Usually their penmanship is atrocious. As a rule, they are very fidgety hardly able to sit still. Perhaps they chew their nails even their clothing. Obviously such children are nervous and excitable.

A Texas mother writes:

"I should like you to tell me what I should do about my five-year-old son's careless awkwardness. He spills everything he gets his hands on stumbles over everything and is in general quite a trial. He has always been this way—walks over anything on the floor without even glancing around to see what it is or even putting anything up and out of the way. He can't carry a cup half full of water across the floor without watching it. The minute he takes his eyes off it it turns up and spills."

Need Of Calmness

I entreated this mother to seek the advice of a physician about her child and to work with this doctor to build him up physically and cultivate in him more calmness and poise.

"Treat him as a sick child" I wrote her. "Get him out of doors for short periods of play but not exciting play and don't let him get over-tired. Have him lie down every afternoon for an hour. Also have him lie down for 15 minutes right before lunch and dinner. Give him tools and encourage him to draw, color, cut, paste and build.

"Keep your voice soft and low. Try to create a serene family atmosphere. Try to win his cooperation. Please don't scold him for his 'apparent carelessness.' He is not careless, he is sick. Praise him when he shows calm and carefulness. You and Dad should show this lad more affection. Put your arm about him now and then and don't hesitate to hold him on your knees or rock him or even to kiss and cuddle him.

Show Affection

"In your letter you refer to a baby one year old. This older child's nervous disorder might be traceable wholly or in part to jealousy of the baby. Certainly you can do no harm by striving to make this lad feel more secure and worth while as a member of the family group. Anyway don't look for miracles. Don't expect the lad to change all at once. Be happy if you see gradual improvements after a few months or weeks."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

PRESERVING MORALE

Secretary of the Navy, Col. Frank Knox, visited San Diego recently and unknowingly became responsible for a serious situation at the Marine Corps, for when he made his tour of inspection at the base, he was received with the customary 19-gun salute—that is what precipitated the problem.

You see Corporal James Jolly Plum Duff, although a marine himself, doesn't like loud noises, especially those made by big guns. Several months prior to the visit of the Secretary, a salute of just a few guns was sounded and Corporal Duff was so put out that he refused to eat for three or four days. What would be his reaction to a 19-gun salute had Marine Don Beeson worried from the time he learned that Col. Knox intended to visit the Base. That was why just before the official party entered the ground, Marine Beeson, at the wheel of a marine truck, drove out of the gate, and headed for a secluded spot far from the sounds of the salute, and at his side was Corporal Duff.

The officers of the Marine Corps are making this special concession to Corporal Duff because the Corporal has a big job ahead of him.

To the men of the Marine Corps, he's just plain Duff, the English bulldog mascot, and he is preparing for his customary place on the sidelines when the Leatherneck Football Team launches its 1940 campaign.

"Duffy" will trade the thrill of a football referee's whistle for the bark of a gun any time.

Breakit Jently came in late the other night and pens this note about his experience:

"I crept upstairs, my shoes in hand, just as the night took wing; and I saw my wife, four steps above, doing the same darn thing."

"Neck who?" demanded the girl with a saucy smile.

Good Taste

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

"I am generally rated as a pretty girl, in face and figure. But I am always conscious of being a poor conversationalist, when in social gatherings.—Ambitious.

My reply: First develop the fine art of becoming a good listener. Let the others do the talking and while they are doing so appear interested in all they say. Never appear impatient to put in your own remarks. Next, develop the art of maintaining repartee in a very few words humorously uttered. Keep off the serious side of general conversations and take no sides in arguments. Thus, you will gradually gain popularity and your self-confidence will come with it. Soon you will maintain an interesting flow of conversation with as little self-consciousness as you would suffer while driving a car after mastering all of the technique. Of course, you should know what you are talking about—should see the best plays and movies, read the best sellers and keep abreast of the news.

Confine your social conversation to themes that will please your listeners. If others engaged in a heated argument appeal to you for approval, remain neutral. Refrain from praise of your own family. Accept compliments to them or to yourself with such an indifferent reply as "I'm glad you think so." Pause and concentrate on what you are about to say before you say it.

Other Readers' Questions Answered

Question: Answer, please, these questions regarding an informal wedding: (1) My father is dead and I have no brothers, may I walk up the aisle alone? (2) I will wear a street-length dress. Should I carry an arm bouquet or wear a corsage? (3) Who should buy my attendant's flowers? Who supplies the groom's and the best man's boutonnieres?—Ellen.

Answer: (1) You may walk alone or have your next nearest relative escort you. (2) A shoulder corsage. (3) The groom supplies all.

Question: Is a receiving line necessary at an informal tea?—Rita.

Answer: At formal teas and receptions, there is always a receiving line. But at an informal tea, the receiving line is usually eliminated. In this case, the hostess should stand near enough to the door to see and be seen by incoming guests. As each guest enters, the hostess should go forward to greet her and introduce her to the guest-of-honor if there is one.

Tomorrow—Correct Figure Defects

You can't beat the women when they are on a hunt for bargains. During the excitement of a downtown fire in Anderson, S. A man went up to a small wayside stand and ordered a cup of coffee. After he had taken a sip or two, he looked up at the sky and then remarked to the man behind the counter,, "It looks like rain."

TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor contain many a grain of sound common sense. Once in a while one reaches the point of genius. Of that kind there is an example in the Christian Science Monitor of last Monday, from a Natick, Mass., correspondent who signs himself—or herself—"A. B. G. It reads:

"If a candidate for President of the United States promised to:

"Double the national debt;

"Reduce the value of the dollar."

"Plow under 25 per cent of the crops;

"Pay $5 for each pig not raised.

"Create class hatred;

"Scare business into cutting down thereby continuing unemployment and endangering everyone's job.

"Attempt to pack the Supreme Court;

"Try to make over the country into a one-man government;

"Set an example of evading laws;

"Ignore his party platform;

"Would he get your vote?"

Maybe one reason so many young men are afraid they will have to go to France or some other European country to fight again, is for fear they will take away their beer like they did during the World War.

What's What At A Glance

Bruce Barton Is Looking Ahead
Future Prospect For President
Defeat Now Would Not Hurt Him

By CHARLES P. STEWART
(Central Press Columnist)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Republicanly nominated recently for a seat in the United States Senate, Representative Bruce Barton of New York is campaigning at present merely for a membership in the upper congressional chamber. What he has in mind ultimately, however, is a far more exalted job than that.

When he originally was suggested as a suitable G. O. P. candidate to oppose Senator James M. Mead, now seeking re-election on the Democratic ticket, Bruce was a trifle doubtful as to the wisdom of going after his party's senatorial indorsement. That he could win representatorially in his northern Manhatton district he was pretty confident. But to get into the Senate he has to carry the whole Empire commonwealth. He wasn't so sure he could do that. He was skeptical of the desirability of seeking a promotion at the risk of being voted out of the national legislative picture altogether.

While he still was cogitating, along came a very astute Republican politician, who gave him some advice. Whether or not it turns out to have been the right kind remains to be seen. It was well meant, anyway. I can't mention this counsellor by name, for he warned me not to. I know what he said, though, because he told it to me himself.

Chance Of A Lifetime

"Bruce," quoth the political wiseacre referred to, "if you can get that Republican senatorial nomination, take it.

"You may be licked at the polls, but you'll run away ahead of the rest of your ticket, even though you don't beat Mead. That's make you almost a certainty for the next G. O. P. nomination for governor. That time perhaps you'll win. And if you get into the governorship of New York, and if Willkie's been defeated in November, you're bound to be presidentially nominated in 1944."

A good many "ifs" were involved in this forecast.

Nevertheless, Representative Barton evidently was convinced, for he fought hard to get that senatorial nomination, from then on, and scooped it in.

What's he running for, in effect, is the presidency.

It's looking some distance ahead, but crafty politicians are in the habit of doing that.

Bruce isn't a very old hand at the game—only a couple of terms in the House of Representatives. Yet he seems adaptable. When an oldster gives him a valuable tip he understands how to act on it.

He Isn't Old

He's young enough himself to wait four years before going on the White House trail. He'll be a mere 58 in 1944. Indeed, he won't be impossibly venerable in 1948, supposing that Willkie wins this year and serves two terms. And Republican prognostication aren't a bit too sure (though they don't admit it) that Wendell will outvote Roosevelt November 5. If not, he certainly won't be renominated in 1944. That's be Bruce's chance to score.

Considering the brevity of his record in Congress, he's made quite a dent on Capitol Hill. He's a first-rate publicity man for himself; his business is advertising. He's been an editor also and has written books. The newspaper boys like him immensely.

Furthermore, he's a native of Tennessee; an appeal to the Solid South—what?

His weakness as a senatorial candidite is that his southerly origin doesn't help him in New York state, and out in the sticks he's apt to be rated as too much a Manhattanite, whereas Senator Mead, his opponent, is from Buffalo, endearing him to the up-country electorate — who appear to consider Buffalo rural, in comparison with the big city. On the opposite hand, he's a Republican in normally Democratic Manhattan.

No, I wouldn't call him an overly bright senatorial prospect.

But he doesn't care so much about a senatorial toga. He's running for president.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

I remember that in my early days in the newspaper business there was a rather exquisite youth, not long out of college, who used to murmur, "What this newspaper needs is elan." I don't know whether we had elan or not, but we did go out hell-for-leather after news, and when you hit the front page with a nice little yarn all your own, you were the kid that built the pyramid, nothing less. It seems like elan, in the backward look.

We have been pondering some of these matters in connection with the celebration of Newspaper Week. In newspapering, as in other crafts, old men dream dreams and young men see visions. It is quite possible that both miss certain realities by living too much in the past or the future. It's hard to make comparisons as to the comparative rating on "elan," "git-up-and-git," or whatever it was that college lad was talking about.

But right at the start, here's a low bow to the boys who have been ducking bombs for the last few years in Ethiopia, Spain, Poland, France, England and waypoints. They must be homesick for a nice, comfortable tong war, or a soothing train wreck or the lullaby of mere nightsticks tunking recalcitrant skulls along the police beat. When it comes to big stories, they may shoot the rest of us, as did Noah when a newcomer in heaven began bragging about what he did in the Johnstown Flood.

The above exploits by daredevil lads getting news, along with the moving pictures, are making newspapering an exceedingly romantic occupation among young people. The question I hear oftenest from the youngsters is "How do I get to be a newspaperman." I tell them the story of my friend Lawrence Perry, writer of short stories and novels, and syndicated sports writer.

When he was scarcely dry behind the ears, he applied for a job at the old Evening Sun. They told him to walk up South street and along the East River and pick up a story. Along the Lower East Side, he saw what appeared to be a battleship, moving up the river. As it neared Twenty-sixth street, its guns were belching. Young Perry had "elan." He slid down the post of a pier into a rowboat, cut it loose and pursued the ship.

There was a landing party at the Yacht Club pier, with plumed officers going ashore. Perry headed into the ceremony but "caught a crab"—that is, he mishandled his boat, half-filled it with water and almost swamped it. Fut he stood up, yelled to the ship's officer and asked them what it was all about. The most imposing among them bade him come ashore.

Wet and dripping, Perry landed. The impressive officer identified himself as Commodore Dewey. He explained that he had taken the new gunboat on a trial trip and this was a ceremonial welcome for the Yacht Club. But there had been all sorts of exciting adventures on the trip. The boy had a story, and six months later this same Commodore Dewey would be Admiral Dewey. Perry ran all the way to the office and was brokenhearted when they handed his story to O'Neil Sevier to write. But he was on his way as a newspaperman.

The best sample of old-time reporter enterprise, which Hollywood would love, is, of course, the classic of Ike White and how he solved the crime when the police failed. Ike was a police reporter for the Morning World. A bomb had been tossed into the office of Russell Sage, but it killed, not the financier, as intended, but the bomb-thrower himself. There was no scrap of evidence leading to the bomb-thrower's identity, until Ike White found one. He picked up a button from the man's trousers. As a pants button, it was entirely undistinguished.

Ike covered every tailor shop in New York without any luck. To-

WHAT'S A BILLION DOLLARS, ANYWAY?

AMERICANS like to do big things in a big way, things that concern big figures. They are partial to millions and billions., especially billions. The word billions has become commonplace, particularly as applied to the nation's public debt of nearly $45,000,000,000, an increase of more than $22,000,000,000 in the last seven and a half years.

But not very many people ever stop to think what a billion dollars means, what it looks like and what it takes to pay it when it's a debt. A billion dollars is pretty hard to visualize.

Suppose you owed a billion dollars and wanted to pay it off at a rate of $1000 a day. Paying $1000 a day, 365 days in the year, it would take you 2739 years and eight months to get rid of the obligation.

And a debt of about $45,000,000,000? Paying at the same rate, $1000 a day, you'd have to feed the kitty for 123,287 years to get out from under, a metropolitan paper has figured out.

National indebtedness of billions for such needs as defense is unavoidable if the country is to be protected. But our debt of close to $45,000,000,000 was rolled up before the preparedness program began. Defense costs of $15,000,000,000 are still to be added to the debt.

High debts mean higher and higher taxes, tougher going to make family ends meet. It's a lot easier to roll up debts of billions than to pay them off. And in paying them off everybody is sure to get soaked.

THIS STATE OF OURS

Fifty per cent of the chocolate and cocoa products made in the U. S. come from the factories in the rich dairy lands of Central Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania was second to Delaware in ratifying the U. S. Constitution.

The greatest cement plants in the world are located in Pennsylvania's Lehigh Valley.

Corn is by far the most important crop in Pennsylvania, annual production exceeding 55,000,000 bushels. Wheat, potatoes, hay, apples, grapes, tobacco and buckwheat are also important.

Pennsylvania produces 100,000 gallons of maple syrup and 50,0000 pounds of sugar annually to rate fourth in the nation.

Pennsylvania farmers realize about $54,000,000 each year from poultry and eggs.

Pennsylvania is the world's center of the steel, coal, oil, glass, slate and cement industries.

WHERE ACADEMIC FREEDOM STOPS

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's blunt talk at Columbia against the misuse of academic freedom comes at a good time. Days of crisis and danger in the nation invariably bring crackpots, theorists pinks, reds and what-have-you rushing toward the limelight. They're found on college faculties, too, spouting in the sacred name of "academic freedom" any line of talk they please.

Dr. Butler's thesis is simple. The colleges and universities of America have a job to do, defending and expounding democracy, our order of life, our system of liberty; defending our country in the classrooms and among the people generally.

If a pedagogue wants to take verbal pot-shots at any or all of this he should, in Dr. Butler's view, resign and do it outside the ivy-clad walls. Academic freedom, as Dr. Butler sees it, doesn't mean a "privilege—much less the right—to use the prestige, the authority and the influence of a university relationship" to tear down everything the university stands for.

There are exponents of academic freedom who think it gives complete license to shoot the works in any direction from the vantage point of a college professorship. Most Americans will heartily agree that Dr. Butler's limitation is perfectly sound and not an interference with anyboyd's real freedom at all.

POLITICAL LESSON IN FRENCH

The tragic example of France should not be lost on Americans.

It was not Marshal Weygand and his men that lost that fateful battle in June. The fall of France goes back to 1935 when Leon Blum, the Socialist doctrinaire, went into office on a wave of reform agitation and class warfare preached by a motley mass calling itself the Popular Front. Spain exhausted itself in civil war from the same cause.

France's New Deal resembled in many ways its American prototype, writes Norton Webb, veteran foreign correspondent, in National Business. Its aim was to lift up the underprivileged, whether they wanted to be lifted or not, to divide the wealth and acquire governmental control over big business.

A wave of sit-down strikes followed Blum's induction into office and the inauguration of his program. Hate of the workers toward those who had succeeded in life and accumulated property was fanned to a bitter flame. Workers were inflamed against farmers and all have-nots against haves. Collective bargaining was forced on industry, followed by compulsory arbitration of labor disputes.

A vast public works program was initiated. Public funds were spent at such a reckless pace that one financial crisis followed another in quick succession. The French New Dealers were applying the philosophy of American New Dealer Thurman Arnold, new Assistant Attorney General, who said:

> One of the reasons for the great strength of Hitler and Mussolini is the fact that they paid no attention to balancing the budget.

The certain result of all these follies was the slowing down of all production, the spliting up of the people into senseless class factions and the weakening of the nation.

France was destroyed by social reform.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

IF GROWING CHILD FUMBLES

During a form I was conducting in a Milwaukee school assembly a very tall eighth-grade boy rose and said: "It seems I'm always dropping and breaking things. My mother and father scold me and tell me I don't care. I do care. I try hard and get discouraged. Is there any hope for me to get better?"

"You see" I replied "your father and mother want to help you get over this awkwardness and they are worried about the cost of the things you break. They suppose they will help you by their methods. You and I don't believe they will. If I could talk to your parents I think I could help them see that when a boy grows fast as you do at your age, he is very awkward. By and by he gets better control of himself. You will I am sure. If I were you I would make myself move slowly when handling things easily dropped and broken. At some quiet time when you feel calm and your father and mother seem most kindly, I would sit down by them and say: 'Mother and Dad, I'm sorry I'm so awkward. I'm sorry I drop and break so many things. I do try hard to be careful. Please won't you be patient with me?"

Awkward Children

It is in early adolescence when extreme awkwardness is most common. Awkwardness may however, appear at any age. The other day a mother told me of a child of eight "always dropping and spilling things." Teachers complain of some children in the lower grades who are "so messy with everything." Usually their penmanship is atrosious. As a rule, they are very fidgety hardly able to sit still. Perhaps they chew their nails even their clothing. Obviously such children are nervous and excitable.

A Texas mother writes:

"I should like you to tell me what I should do about my five-year-old son's careless awkwardness. He spills everything he gets his hands on stumbles over everything and is in general quite a trial. He has always been this way—walks over anything on the floor without even glancing around to see what it is or even putting anything up and out of the way. He can't carry a cup half full of water across the floor without watching it. The minute he takes his eyes off it it turns up and spills."

Need Of Calmness

I entreated this mother to seek the advice of a physician about her child and to work with this doctor to build him up physically and cultivate in him more calmness and poise.

"Treat him as a sick child" I wrote her. "Get him out of doors for short periods of play but not exciting play and don't let him get over-tired. Have him lie down every afternoon for an hour. Also have him lie down for 15 minutes right before lunch and dinner. Give him tools and encourage him to draw, color, cut, paste and build.

"Keep your voice soft and low. Try to create a serene family atmosphere. Try to win his cooperation. Please don't scold him for his 'apparent carelessness.' He is not careless, he is sick. Praise him when he shows calm and carefulness. You and Dad should show this lad more affection. Put your arm about him now and then and don't hesitate to hold him on your knees or rock him or even to kiss and cuddle him.

Show Affection

"In your letter you refer to a baby one year old. This older child's nervous disorder might be traceable wholly or in part to jealousy of the baby. Certainly you can do no harm by striving to make this lad feel more secure and worth while as a member of the family group. Anyway don't look for miracles. Don't expect the lad to change all at once. Be happy if you see gradual improvements after a few months or weeks."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

PRESERVING MORALE

Secretary of the Navy, Col. Frank Knox, visited San Diego recently and unknowingly became responsible for a serious situation at the Marine Corps, for when he made his tour of inspection at the base, he was received with the customary 19-gun salute—that is what precipitated the problem.

You see Corporal James Jolly Plum Duff, although a marine himself, doesn't like loud noises, especially those made by big guns. Several months prior to the visit of the Secretary, a salute of just a few guns was sounded and Corporal Duff was so put out that he refused to eat for three or four days. What would be his reaction to a 19-gun salute had Marine Don Beeson worried from the time he learned that Col. Knox intended to visit the Base. That was why just before the official party entered the ground, Marine Beeson, at the wheel of a marine truck, drove out of the gate, and headed for a secluded spot far from the sounds of the salute, and at his side was Corporal Duff.

The officers of the Marine Corps are making this special concession to Corporal Duff because the Corporal has a big job ahead of him.

To the men of the Marine Corps, he's just plain Duff, the English bulldog mascot, and he is preparing for his customary place on the sidelines when the Leatherneck Football Team launches its 1940 campaign.

"Duffy" will trade the thrill of a football referee's whistle for the bark of a gun any time.

Breakit Jently came in late the other night and pens this note about his experience:

"I crept upstairs, my shoes in hand, just as the night took wing; and I saw my wife, four steps above, doing the same darn thing."

Good Taste

"I am generally rated as a pretty girl, in face and figure. But I am always conscious of being a poor conversationalist, when in social gatherings.—Ambitious.

My reply: First develop the fine art of becoming a good listener. Let the others do the talking and while they are doing so appear interested in all they say. Never appear impatient to put in your own remarks. Next, develop the art of maintaining repartee in a very few words humorously uttered. Keep off the serious side of general conversations and take no sides in arguments. Thus, you will gradually gain popularity and your self-confidence will come with it. Soon you will maintain an interesting flow of conversation with as little self-consciousness as you would suffer while driving a car after mastering all of the technique. Of course, you should know what you are talking about—should see the best plays and movies, read the best sellers and keep abreast of the news.

Confine your social conversation to themes that will please your listeners. If others engaged in a heated argument appeal to you for approval, remain neutral. Refrain from praise of your own family. Accept compliments to them or to yourself wtih such an indifferent reply as "I'm glad you think so." Pause and concentrate on what you are about to say before you say it.

Question: Is a receiving line necessary at an informal tea?—Rita.

Answer: At formal teas and receptions, there is always a receiving line. But at an informal tea, the receiving line is usually eliminated. As each guest enters the hostess should go forward to greet her and introduce her to the guest-of-honor if there is one.

Tomorrow—Correct Figure Defects

You can't beat the women when they are on a hunt for bargains. During the excitement of a downtown fire in Anderson, S. TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor contain many a grain of sound common sense. Once in a while one reaches the point of genius. Of that kind there is an example in the Christian Science Monitor of last Monday, from a Natick, Mass., correspondent who signs himself—or herself—"A. B. G. It reads:

"If a candidate for President of the United States promised to:

"Double the national debt;

"Reduce the value of the dollar."

"Plow under 25 per cent of the crops;

"Pay $5 for each pig not raised.

"Create class hatred;

"Scare business into cutting down thereby continuing unemployment and endangering everyone's job.

"Attempt to pack the Supreme Court;

"Try to make over the country into a one-man government;

"Set an example of evading laws;

"Ignore his party platform;

"Would he get your vote?"

Maybe one reason so many young men are afraid they will have to go to France or some other European country to fight again, is for fear they will take away their beer like they did during the World War.

What's What At A Glance

Bruce Barton Is Looking Ahead
Future Prospect For President
Defeat Now Would Not Hurt Him

By CHARLES P. STEWART
(Central Press Columnist)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Republicanly nominated recently for a seat in the United States Senate, Representative Bruce Barton of New York is campaigning at present merely for a membership in the upper congressional chamber. What he has in mind ultimately, however, is a far more exalted job than that.

When he originally was suggested as a suitable G. O. P. candidate to oppose Senator James M. Mead, now seeking re-election on the Democratic ticket, Bruce was a trifle doubtful as to the wisdom of going after his party's senatorial indorsement. That he could win representatorially in his northern Manhatton district he was pretty confident. But to get into the Senate he has to carry the whole Empire commonwealth. He wasn't so sure he could do that. He was skeptical of the desirability of seeking a promotion at the risk of being voted out of the national legislative picture altogether.

While he still was cogitating, along came a very astute Republican politician, who gave him some advice. Whether or not it turns out to have been the right kind remains to be seen. It was well meant, anyway. I can't mention this counsellor by name, for he warned me not to. I know what he said, though, because he told it to me himself.

Chance Of A Lifetime

"Bruce," quoth the political wiseacre referred to, "if you can get that Republican senatorial nomination, take it.

"You may be licked at the polls, but you'll run away ahead of the rest of your ticket, even though you don't beat Mead. That's make you almost a certainty for the next G. O. P. nomination for governor. That time perhaps you'll win. And if you get into the governorship of New York, and if Willkie's been defeated in November, you're bound to be presidentially nominated in 1944."

A good many "ifs" were involved in this forecast.

Nevertheless, Representative Barton evidently was convinced, for he fought hard to get that senatorial nomination, from then on, and scooped it in.

What's he running for, in effect, is the presidency.

It's looking some distance ahead, but crafty politicians are in the habit of doing that.

Bruce isn't a very old hand at the game—only a couple of terms in the House of Representatives. Yet he seems adaptable. When an oldster gives him a valuable tip he understands how to act on it.

He Isn't Old

He's young enough himself to wait four years before going on the White House trail. He'll be a mere 58 in 1944. Indeed, he won't be impossibly venerable in 1948, supposing that Willkie wins this year and serves two terms. And Republican prognostication aren't a bit too sure (though they don't admit it) that Wendell will outvote Roosevelt November 5. If not, he certainly won't be renominated in 1944. That's be Bruce's chance to score.

Considering the brevity of his record in Congress, he's made quite a dent on Capitol Hill. He's a first-rate publicity man for himself; his business is advertising. He's been an editor also and has written books. The newspaper boys like him immensely.

Furthermore, he's a native of Tennessee; an appeal to the Solid South—what?

His weakness as a senatorial candidite is that his southerly origin doesn't help him in New York state, and out in the sticks he's apt to be rated as too much a Manhattanite, whereas Senator Mead, his opponent, is from Buffalo, endearing him to the up-country electorate — who appear to consider Buffalo rural, in comparison with the big city. On the opposite hand, he's a Republican in normally Democratic Manhattan.

No, I wouldn't call him an overly bright senatorial prospect.

But he doesn't care so much about a senatorial toga. He's running for president.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

I remember that in my early days in the newspaper business there was a rather exquisite youth, not long out of college, who used to murmur, "What this newspaper needs is elan." I don't know whether we had elan or not, but we did go out hell-for-leather after news, and when you hit the front page with a nice little yarn all your own, you were the kid that built the pyramid, nothing less. It seems like elan, in the backward look.

We have been pondering some of these matters in connection with the celebration of Newspaper Week. In newspapering, as in other crafts, old men dream dreams and young men see visions. It is quite possible that both miss certain realities by living too much in the past or the future. It's hard to make comparisons as to the comparative rating on "elan," "git-up-and-git," or whatever it was that college lad was talking about.

But right at the start, here's a low bow to the boys who have been ducking bombs for the last few years in Ethiopia, Spain, Poland, France, England and waypoints. They must be homesick for a nice, comfortable tong war, or a soothing train wreck or the lullaby of mere nightsticks tunking recalcitrant skulls along the police beat. When it comes to big stories, they may snoot the rest of us, as did Noah when a newcomer in heaven began bragging about what he did in the Johnstown Flood.

The above exploits by daredevil lads getting news, along with the moving pictures, are making newspapering an exceedingly romantic occupation among young people. The question I hear oftenest from the youngsters is "How do I get to be a newspaperman." I tell them the story of my friend Lawrence Perry, writer of short stories and novels, and syndicated sports writer.

When he was scarcely dry behind the ears, he applied for a job at the old Evening Sun. They told him to walk up South street and along the East River and pick up a story. Along the Lower East Side, he saw what appeared to be a battleship, moving up the river. As it neared Twenty-sixth street, its guns were belching. Young Perry had "elan." He slid down the post of a pier into a rowboat, cut it loose and pursued the ship.

There was a landing party at the Yacht Club pier, with plumed officers going ashore. Perry headed into the ceremony but "caught a crab"—that is, he mishandled his boat, half-filled it with water and almost swamped it. Fut he stood up, yelled to the ship's officer and asked them what it was all about. The most imposing among them bade him come ashore.

Wet and dripping, Perry landed. The impressive officer identified himself as Commodore Dewey. He explained that he had taken the new gunboat on a trial trip and this was a ceremonial welcome for the Yacht Club. But there had been all sorts of exciting adventures on the trip. The boy had a story, and six months later this same Commodore Dewey would be Admiral Dewey. Perry ran all the way to the office and was broken-hearted when they handed his story to O'Neil Sevier to write. But he was on his way as a newspaperman.

The best sample of old-time reporter enterprise, which Hollywood would love, is, of course, the classic of Ike White and how he solved the crime when the police failed. Ike was a police reporter for the Morning World. A bomb had been tossed into the office of Russell Sage, but it killed, not the financier, as intended, but the bomb-thrower himself. There was no scrap of evidence leading to the bomb-thrower's identity, until Ike White found one. He picked up a button from the man's trousers. As a pants button, it was entirely undistinguished.

Ike covered every tailor shop in New York without any luck. Toward the end of his string, he found a tailor who thought they used buttons like that up in New England. He took up the trail in Boston, again visiting all the tailor shops. He found a man who said a tailor in nearby Roxbury used such buttons. In Roxbury, there was a tailor who had used such buttons on a suit made for a man named Norcross, who lived in Brookline. Norcross had been missing two weeks. His full identification was established. He was the bomb-thrower.

East Brook Church Centennial Is Most Successfully Observed

Successful in every detail were the centennial services held at East Brook United Presbyterian church, New Castle, R. D. 5, over the week-end, with an average attendance of 360 at the five services.

Sunday was the big day for the congregation and pastor, Rev. Robert E. Douglass, with preliminary services Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Saturday, at noon, dinner was served in the church basement to about 110 persons, with about 45 of that number representing the First U. P. church of this city. Many beautiful flowers covered the church rostrum and were placed about the church, the bouquets being donated by the East Brook Garden club and members of the church. One basket was presented in honor of Frances Willard by the W. C. T. U. and one basket at the Sunday communion service was given by the McKnight children in honor of Mr. and Mrs. McKnight.

Saturday Afternoon

The Saturday afternoon program got underway at 2:30 o'clock with the pastor in charge. A complete and interesting history of the church was given by Mrs. S. A. Black, after which the Honorable James A. Chambers responded. Informal remarks by the congregation followed with many taking part, including J. Clyde Gilfillan, Rev. L. S. Clark, Mrs. Clyde Uber of Grove City, Thomas Davis and Victor Houston, the latter of Allentown.

After a vocal solo by Richard Patterson, formerly a teacher at Westminster college, the history of the missionary societies was given with Mrs. Arthur McCreary telling of the Women's group and Mrs. Clyde Shellenberger of the Mary Jane Society. The choir for these services included the regular choir of about 30 voices, as well as 15 former members, and was placed on both sides of the minister. Old song books were used and hymn words were read preceding each number.

Community night was observed Saturday at 8 p. m. when greetings were brought from neighboring congregations. Rev. Homer K. Miller spoke for the Rich Hill Presbyterian congregation; Rev. Abram P. Shaffer for the East Brook Methodist, and Rev. Charles Stunkard of Fredonia for Neshannock U. P.

Dr. Homer B. Henderson of Grove City, moderator of the United Presbyterian Church, was the principal speaker, choosing as his subject, "Hitherto, Henceforth". Dr. Henderson's address proved both interesting and inspirational. He also pronounced the benediction.

Sunday Morning

About 275 partook of the Lord's Supper at the centennial communion Sunday morning when the church session was in charge. People came from California, Alabama, Buffalo, N. Y., and other far places to participate in this service. The Rev. L. S. Clark gave the Communion Meditation and throughout the service, the choir rendered several beautiful anthems. Mrs. Florence Covert is pianist and Glenn Patterson is director of music at East Brook church.

Probably the most largely attended service of the series was the Sunday afternoon program when an impressive memorial service for deceased members of the congregation took place. Rev. Douglass had charge of this service, during which the choir sang "Come to the Church in the Grove," an improvision of the old song, "Come to the Church in the Wildwood," with appropriate words written by Mrs. E. M. Houston.

Following, the audience rose and stood with bowed heads for three minutes, Rev. W. V. Grove giving the memorial prayer and the service closing with the singing of "Abide with Me". Letters from absentee ministers and members were read at this service, including Dr. J. W. Birnley, Rev. James M. Guthrie of Oneonta, N. Y., and Rev. Herbert Hezlep of Cincinnati, a son of the congregation. Remarks were given at this time, also, by Rev. Ralph McConnell of Erie Presbyterian church, East Brook being his boyhood church. His family formerly lived at McConnell's Mills. Rev. W. V. Grove reminisced on his experiences as a young preacher and the Grove family, Rev. and Mrs. Grove, and Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Grove, were called upon to stand. Rev. Willis of New Galilee spoke, after which former sons and daughters were heard from, including Miss Rebekah Browne, daughter of a former pastor, and Mr. McMarlin, of Butler, a summer resident of East Brook.

An accurate model of East Brook church had been made by W. R. McKee and was on display throughout the celebration services. On behalf of the congregation and pastor, he presented the model to the oldest elder and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Patterson. Mr. Patterson had served 50 years as janitor of the church and for 36 years has been a ruling elder. A fitting response was given by Mr. Patterson following the presentation.

Young People's Night

Young People's night was celebrated Sunday evening with Willard Bowden, S. Y. P. W. of Mercer Presbytery, in charge. The Fellowship convention chorus, "Not Mine but Thine," was sung during this service. The Pioneer chorus, of 20 children's voices, which appeared Sunday evening was under the direction of Mrs. Robert Douglass. About 45 are in the Fellowship chorus. Recognition was given twelve members of the Neshannock Young People's Society who attended the service and sat with the East Brook group. The scripture was read by Mrs. Willard Bowden, after which there were remarks by Miss Mary Jane McKnight and James McKnight, both missionaries to the Sudan.

Jack Houston, president of the society, read the history of the society, covering a period of 50 years. Miss Bernice Edle favored the audience with a lovely violin solo, followed by the sermon, "Forging Ahead," delivered by Rev. Ralph Grove of the Sixth U. P. church, North Side, Pittsburgh. Rev. Grove is S. Y. P. W. of Allegheny Presbytery.

The benediction, pronounced by Rev. Grove, brought to a close this series of services. Much credit is due the committees for their untiring efforts which made the event such a success, and to the church officers and members of the congregation for their aid, making East Brook church's centennial celebration one long to be remembered.

Homecoming Day Observed Sunday

Many old acquaintances were renewed on Sunday when homecoming day was observed by the Sunday school at the Reformed Presbyterian church.

Among greetings received from former pastors, now serving other churches, were those from Rev. J. S. Martin, now of Geneva college; S. J. Johnstone of Leesburg, Fla.; E. A. Crooks of Selma, Ala. Greetings were also received from out of town school mates of other years, as well as from those in town who could not attend.

Over 100 attended and the familiar 23rd Psalm was sung from memory as the opening. The closing worship service was conducted by Oscar Riley.

What College Students Talk About Analyzed

Women Are Advised Not To Interrupt When Man Is Talking

(International News Service)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 8.—A tip to women: Don't interrupt a man's speech if you want to keep his interest. Interruptions annoy men more than any other conversational fault, according to a survey of 162 Pennsylvania State college students made by Eugene T. McDonald, graduate assistant in clinical speech.

Women are more often annoyed by loud talk, McDonald found, while both men and women dislike conceit. Misuse of English ranked second in annoyance.

Although they opposed gossip, a large majority of both sexes enjoyed non-malicious discussions of personalities. Discussion of dates was taboo in mixed groups but enjoyed by more than half in unmixed groups. Profanity and dirty jokes were condemned, but "shop talk" was approved.

The old belief that women talk more than men seems to be contradicted by the fact that more women than men reported difficulty in starting a conversation, in talking to strangers, and in finding interesting topics of discussion. However, these difficulties may be caused by convention, which has long decreed that men should take the lead in conversation.

Half the group enjoyed puns, called by some "the lowest form of wit." Slightly more men than women enjoy flattery; slightly more women than men definitely disliked it.

On Court House Hill

Further instructions have been received by the county commissioners for the registration of draftees on October 16. There will be one board known as a "floating board" which will register men between 21 and 36 who are ill, or who are in jail or the county home.

This board will be appointed from the list of volunteer workers who have said they will aid the registration. Men who are unable to go to the registry polls on October 16 are expected to notify the county commissioners and the registrars will go to their homes.

Every male citizen who has passed his 21st birthday and has not passed his 36th birthday must register whether he is native born, naturalized or an alien.

Hunters' licenses are going out slowly this year, more so than in the past several years according to Earl R. Wimer, county treasurer. According to that infallible prophet, Andrew Dodds, rabbits will be scarce this year. Dodds bases his forecast upon the premise that the early litters of rabbits were drowned by the wet weather in the spring and that the second litters are still rather small.

Argument court was held Monday morning by Judges W. Walter Braham and Thomas W. Dickey. A number of cases were argued and decisions will be handed down later.

Sheriff's sales were held Monday with Sheriff M. M. Ingham disposing of 9 parcels. Six other parcels which which were scheduled for sale were stayed.

East Brook Church Centennial Is Most Successfully Observed

Successful in every detail were the centennial services held at East Brook United Presbyterian church, New Castle, R. D. 5, over the week-end, with an average attendance of 360 at the five services.

Sunday was the big day for the congregation and pastor, Rev. Robert E. Douglass, with preliminary services Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Saturday, at noon, dinner was served in the church basement to about 110 persons, with about 45 of that number representing the First U. P. church of this city. Many beautiful flowers covered the church rostrum and were placed about the church, the bouquets being donated by the East Brook Garden club and members of the church. One basket was presented in honor of Frances Willard by the W. C. T. U. and one basket at the Sunday communion service was given by the McKnight children in honor of Mr. and Mrs. McKnight.

Saturday Afternoon

The Saturday afternoon program got underway at 2:30 o'clock with the pastor in charge. A complete and interesting history of the church was given by Mrs. S. A. Black, after which the Honorable James A. Chambers responded. Informal remarks by the congregation followed with many taking part, including J. Clyde Gilfillan, Rev. L. S. Clark, Mrs. Clyde Uber of Grove City, Thomas Davis and Victor Houston, the latter of Allentown.

After a vocal solo by Richard Patterson, formerly a teacher at Westminster college, the history of the missionary societies was given with Mrs. Arthur McCreary telling of the Women's group and Mrs. Clyde Shellenberger of the Mary Jane Society. The choir for these services included the regular choir of about 30 voices, as well as 15 former members, and was placed on both sides of the minister. Old song books were used and hymn words were read preceding each number.

Community night was observed Saturday at 8 p. m. when greetings were brought from neighboring congregations. Rev. Homer K. Miller spoke for the Rich Hill Presbyterian congregation; Rev. Abram P. Shaffer for the East Brook Methodist, and Rev. Charles Stunkard of Fredonia for Neshannock U. P.

Dr. Homer B. Henderson of Grove City, moderator of the United Presbyterian Church, was the principal speaker, choosing as his subject, "Hitherto, Henceforth". Dr. Henderson's address proved both interesting and inspirational. He also pronounced the benediction.

Sunday Morning

About 275 partook of the Lord's Supper at the centennial communion Sunday morning when the church session was in charge. People came from California, Alabama, Buffalo, N. Y., and other far places to participate in this service. The Rev. L. S. Clark gave the Communion Meditation and throughout the service, the choir rendered several beautiful anthems. Mrs. Florence Covert is pianist and Glenn Patterson is director of music at East Brook church.

Probably the most largely attended service of the series was the Sunday afternoon program when an impressive memorial service for deceased members of the congregation took place. Rev. Douglass had charge of this service, during which the choir sang "Come to the Church in the Grove," an improvision of the old song, "Come to the Church in the Wildwood," with appropriate words written by Mrs. E. M. Houston.

Following, the audience rose and stood with bowed heads for three minutes, Rev. W. V. Grove giving the memorial prayer and the service closing with the singing of "Abide with Me". Letters from absentee ministers and members were read at this service, including Dr. J. W. Birnley, Rev. James M. Guthrie of Oneonta, N. Y., and Rev. Herbert Hezlep of Cincinnati, a son of the congregation. Remarks were given at this time, also, by Rev. Ralph McConnell of Erie Presbyterian church, East Brook being his boyhood church. His family formerly lived at McConnell's Mills. Rev. W. V. Grove reminisced on his experiences as a young preacher and the Grove family, Rev. and Mrs. Grove, and Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Grove, were called upon to stand. Rev. Willis of New Galilee spoke, after which former sons and daughters were heard from, including Miss Rebekah Browne, daughter of a former pastor, and Mr. McMarlin, of Butler, a summer resident of East Brook.

An accurate model of East Brook church had been made by W. R. McKee and was on display throughout the celebration services. On behalf of the congregation and pastor, he presented the model to the oldest elder and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Patterson. Mr. Patterson had served 50 years as janitor of the church and for 36 years has been a ruling elder. A fitting response was given by Mr. Patterson following the presentation.

Young People's Night

Young People's night was celebrated Sunday evening with Willard Bowden, S. Y. P. W. of Mercer Presbytery, in charge. The Fellowship convention chorus, "Not Mine but Thine," was sung during this service. The Pioneer chorus, of 20 children's voices, which appeared Sunday evening was under the direction of Mrs. Robert Douglass. About 45 are in the Fellowship chorus. Recognition was given twelve members of the Neshannock Young People's Society who attended the service and sat with the East Brook group. The scripture was read by Mrs. Williard Bowden, after which there were remarks by Miss Mary Jane McKnight and James McKnight, both missionaries to the Sudan.

Jack Houston, president of the society, read the history of the society, covering a period of 50 years. Miss Bernice Edie favored the audience with a lovely violin solo, followed by the sermon, "Forging Ahead," delivered by Rev. Ralph Grove of the Sixth U. P. church, North Side, Pittsburgh. Rev. Grove is S. Y. P. W. of Allegheny Presbytery.

The benediction, pronounced by Rev. Grove, brought to a close this series of services. Much credit is due the committees for their untiring efforts which made the event such a success, and to the church officers and members of the congregation for their aid, making East Brook church's centennial celebration one long to be remembered.

Homecoming Day Observed Sunday

Many old acquaintances were renewed on Sunday when homecoming day was observed by the Sunday school at the Reformed Presbyterian church.

Among greetings received from former pastors, now serving other churches, were those from Rev. J. S. Martin, now of Geneva college; S. J. Johnstone of Leesburg, Fla.; E. A. Crooks of Selma, Ala. Greetings were also received from out of town school mates of other years, as well as from those in town who could not attend.

Over 100 attended and the familiar 23rd Psalm was sung from memory as the opening. The closing worship service was conducted by Oscar Riley.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

EPILEPTIC CONVULSIONS

I have a particularly distressing case on my hands now—a young lad who has been subject to epileptic convulsions for some time, and is beginning to be affected mentally. He is becoming dull and slow witted, and I am afraid that he will never be able to take his place in the world as a normal citizen.

This is the most serious aspect of epileptic seizures in children. This young fellow was a very bright youngster. Since the seizures began several years ago, we have done everything we could for him. For a while I hoped that his mental capabilities wouldn't be seriously affected, but recently there has been a definite change in him. Many cases of epilepsy result in this progressive deterioration of the patient's mind. I think the frequency and violence of the attacks must have a bearing on the injury done to the brain. Certainly the mental deterioration appears much more frequently in cases where the seizures are frequent and violent.

Yet I have seen cases where no mental decline whatever seemed to follow the disease. Some very brilliant persons have been epileptic all their lives. While there is as yet no medical cure for epilepsy, some cases seem to cure themselves, for the seizures stop of their own accord. In these cases the mental deterioration ceases as soon as the seizures do. One child I knew suffered some injury to his mental capabilities. Then the seizures stopped, and he began to improve. Today, I believe he is almost as alert mentally as though the seizures never occurred.

It is very important for parents to remember that although medical science has not evolved a cure for epilepsy, that in all clases proper medical treatment makes the mental deterioration much less serious.

Improving the mental attitude of the epileptic child toward his affliction is very important in keeping the disease from harming his mental apparatus. The more intelligent youngster subject to the seizures will come to realize that he is different from others in a distinctly unfavorable way. Possibly, other children will taunt him with his weakness if they know about it, and if he has many seizures, they won't be long in finding out about them. This ridicule will likely create in him a greater fear of his seizures. He will be constantly thinking about them, and this will produce a nervous strain which is precisely the condition that brings on the seizures.

In the belief that they are helping him, most parents attempt to shield the child and make his life even more abnormal. They restrict his freedom. They try to keep him quiet, often away from other children of his age. All these things make the poor child brood over his lot, and this again is the exact condition that should be avoided.

The fact is that these seizures rarely occur when the patient is active and busy. They come most often when he is resting. If he is kept preoccupied with wholesome, normal activities and interests, and kept as far as possible from being made to feel that he is a very unfortunate child, a great deal will have been done to prevent the disease from doing serious damage.

Preventable Accidents.

Girl Scout Campers Have Annual Reunion

Impressive Color Ceremony Is Conducted At Annual Reunion Held At Cascade Park

Cascade park again rang with merriment and song as 50 Girl Scout campers joined Miss Helen MacLean, director, and members of the camp staff for their annual reunion Saturday, October 6. The prolonged fall weather was perfect for the outing, and the "trees were gorgeously decked in their very best holiday attire for the occasion".

From 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. the girls explored the park, played games, sang favorite camp songs and ate lunch with their old camp friends.

The day ended with an impressive color ceremony, at which Mrs. E. H. Willmarth of the day camp committee and Mrs. John A. Edgar were welcome guests.

After the flag had been carefully laid away until another summer, along with treasured memories of this past summer's work and play, cookouts, swimming progress and "just fun outdoors", Miss Regina Popp, chairman of the day camp committee, presented the girls with a surprise treat from the committee members who were unable to attend.

Council convened in the city building today and permitted the Bell Telephone company to construct an underground conduit in North Apple way at Homestead street to the Chambers Motor company building which rears on Apple way. The company also was given sanction to place a pole temporarily in Park avenue to carry current to the Highland U. P. church.

Director of Accounts J. L. Fink certified to council his approval of a contract between the city and J. R. Rick Motor Car company for a Plymouth sedan purchased recently by the city for the use of the city engineer at a net price of $630.

Pennsylvania Liquor Control board officials today told the city in a letter the city has a credit of liquor funds amounting to $13,747.39, payable June 1, 1941. The money is the city's share up to August 1, 1940. However, because the money derived by the state from liquor license fees is being used for relief this year the city will not get it now. However, the officials said it would be legal for the city to borrow from a bank with the money due as security.

County commissioners notified city council in session at city hall that the question of Sunday motion pictures here will be placed on the November ballot.

Thirty-nine adjustments of various weights and measures were made by Inspector C. R. Balph during September, he informed council at a session in city hall this morning.

During September, police court receipts totalled $989.55. Two hundred and fifty-two arrests were made. Of this numbeer 153 paid fines or failed to claim cash bonds presented for a police court trial. Eighty-four paid a fine for violating the parking ordinance and 11 were fined for other traffic violations. Three others were arrested for speeding. Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

EPILEPTIC CONVULSIONS

I have a particularly distressing case on my hands now—a young lad who has been subject to epileptic convulsions for some time, and is beginning to be affected mentally. He is becoming dull and slow witted, and I am afraid that he will never be able to take his place in the world as a normal citizen.

This is the most serious aspect of epileptic seizures in children. This young fellow was a very bright youngster. Since the seizures began several years ago, we have done everything we could for him. For a while I hoped that his mental capabilities wouldn't be seriously affected, but recently there has been a definite change in him. Many cases of epilepsy result in this progressive deterioration of the patient's mind. I think the frequency and violence of the attacks must have a bearing on the injury done to the brain. Certainly the mental deterioration appears much more frequently in cases where the seizures are freyuent and violent.

Yet I have seen cases where no mental decline whatever seemed to follow the disease. Some very brilliant persons have been epileptic all their lives. While there is as yet no medical cure for epilepsy, some cases seem to cure themselves, for the seizures stop of their own accord. In these cases the mental deterioration ceases as soon as the seizures do. One child I knew suffered some injury to his mental capabilities. Then the seizures stopped, and he began to improve. Today, I believe he is almost as alert mentally as though the seizures never occurred.

It is very important for parents to remember that although medical science has not evolved a cure for epilepsy, that in all clases proper medical treatment makes the mental deterioration much less serious.

Improving the mental attitude of the epileptic child toward his affliction is very important in keeping the disease from harming his mental apparatus. The more intelligent youngster subject to the seizures will come to realize that he is different from others in a distinctly unfavorable way. Possibly, other children will taunt him with his weakness if they know about it, and if he has many seizures, they won't be long in finding out about them. This ridicule will likely create in him a greater fear of his seizures. He will be constantly thinking about them, and this will produce a nervous strain which is precisely the condition that brings on the seizures.

In the belief that they are helping him, most parents attempt to shield the child and make his life even more abnormal. They restrict his freedom. They try to keep him quiet, often away from other children of his age. All these things make the poor child brood over his lot, and this again is the exact condition that should be avoided.

The fact is that these seizures rarely occur when the patient is active and busy. They come most often when he is resting. If he is kept preoccupied with wholesome, normal activities and interests, and kept as far as possible from being made to feel that he is a very unfortunate child, a great deal will have been done to prevent the disease from doing serious damage.

Preventable Accidents.

Europe Faces Food Shortage

Belgium, France, Poland And Norway Face Possible Famine

OTHER NATIONS IN BETTER SHAPE

By WILLIAM E. ZIMMERMAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON Oct. 8—Germany, Italy, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Denmark have enough food to last through the winter, but Belgium, France, Poland and Norway face possible famine, government agricultural experts declared today.

Here is the picture as the agricultural experts see it:

As the number one agricultural producer in Europe, with the exception of Russia, and with control over nearly the whole continent, Germany has the largest food reserves on hand.

The agricultural countries of Austria, Czechoslovakia and Denmark have enough supplies to keep the situation from becoming critical.

Italy, by curtail and ration, will likewise avoid serious deficiencies.

Ravaged Nations

Ravaged by the German legions, Belgium, France, Poland and Norway, however, have experienced a very poor crop year and it is virtually impossible for them to get much-needed imports because of war blockades. Trade is prohibited between the German-occupied sections and unoccupied sections in France.

The experts asserted that if existing supplies were equitably distributed the general European food situation would be good, but they disclosed that Germany is moving much of the obtainable food into the Reich proper, and that it was "improbable" there would be any distribution of these supplies. If the war is carried on through 1941 into 1942, and unless overseas supply lines are opened, the present dangerous European food situation will be further intensified, and extended over larger areas, the experts predicted.

Doling Out Less

It was pointed out that the German government, in an apparent effort to conserve reserves, is doling out less and less food, with Hitler giving most of his soldiers and workers and what is left to the populace, leaving little for other distribution. Some 30 to 35 million persons in the Reich are rationed "substantially below the customary consumption level and perhaps not very much in excess of a bare subsistence level," said the experts.

Russia, including its acquisitions of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania and part of Finland, is not in a position to supply significant quantities of food to the Axis powers or to any other countries in Europe.

The experts corroborated German claims that food reserves were at as high a level last month as at the outbreak of the war over a year ago and that butter, eggs and meat stocks are larger than "at any time previously."

While the German-conquered nations of Denmark and the Netherlands may experience bread difficulties, the Reich has a reserve supply of grain that will allow present rations to be maintained and permit distribution of about 2,000,000 tons of such grains in those areas.

Despite its acquisition of Denmark and the Netherlands, however, the Reich has not yet acquired enough edible fats and oils to maintain fat rations more than eight months, the experts asserted.

Floyd McFarland Ordained Minister

At the prayer conference of the Eastern district of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, which concluded last week in Philadelphia, Floyd McFarland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin McFarland, of R. R. 4, was ordained into the ministry. Rev. McFarland is a graduate of East Brook High school and the Missionary Training Institute, Nyack, N. Y.

The impressive service took place in the 20th street Alliance Gospel Tabernacle where Rev. Arthur Williams, former pastor of Hoover Heights Tabernacle here, is pastor. The moderator for the session was Rev. J. H. Boon, pastor of Gospel Tabernacle, 210 Pearson street. The charge to the candidate was made by Rev. H. M. Shuman, president of the Christian and Missionary Alliance and former pastor of the Pearson street church. Others taking part in the ordination ceremonies included Rev. Asserts Straw Votes Show Willkie To Win

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8—Wendell L. Willkie will carry the nation, even on the basis of current straw votes, Oren Root, Jr., chairman of the Associated Willkie Club of America, predicted in Pittsburgh Monday.

Speaking of the latest straw poll, Root—in Pittsburgh for addresses and question periods at the Hungry Club and the Community Forum—said:

"Personally, I prefer to think the poll is true, and, accepting it as true, there is a very great hope for a Willkie victory.

"There are enough voters undecided, according to the poll, that if Willkie could win a majority of them, he will win the election.

"You also noticed that the poll showed that the Willkie supporters are stronger for Willkie than the Roosevelt supporters are for President Roosevelt, and I think that has great significance.

"I believe that Willkie will win a majority of votes in the electoral college."

He said it was his "personal feeling that Willkie is going to carry New York." Root pointed out that nearly all of the leaders of the Fusion party in New York which elected Mayor LaGuardia are supporting Willkie.

Root said he had been assured by persons in whom he has trust that Pennsylvania will "be close but will go Republican."

Europe Faces Food Shortage

Belgium, France, Poland And Norway Face Possible Famine

OTHER NATIONS IN BETTER SHAPE

By WILLIAM E. ZIMMERMAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON Oct. 8—Germany, Italy, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Denmark have enough food to last through the winter, but Belgium, France, Poland and Norway face possible famine, government agricultural experts declared today.

Here is the picture as the agricultural experts see it:

As the number one agricultural producer in Europe, with the exception of Russia, and with control over nearly the whole continent, Germany has the largest food reserves on hand.

The agricultural countries of Austria, Czechoslovakia and Denmark have enough supplies to keep the situation from becoming critical.

Italy, by curtail and ration, will likewise avoid serious deficiencies.

Ravaged Nations

Ravaged by the German legions, Belgium, France, Poland and Norway, however, have experienced a very poor crop year and it is virtually impossible for them to get much-needed imports because of war blockades. Trade is prohibited between the German-occupied sections and unoccupied sections in France.

The experts asserted that if existing supplies were equitably distributed the general European food situation would be good, but they disclosed that Germany is moving much of the obtainable food into the Reich proper, and that it was "improbable" there would be any distribution of these supplies. If the war is carried on through 1941 into 1942, and unless overseas supply lines are opened, the present dangerous European food situation will be further intensified, and extended over larger areas, the experts predicted.

Doling Out Less

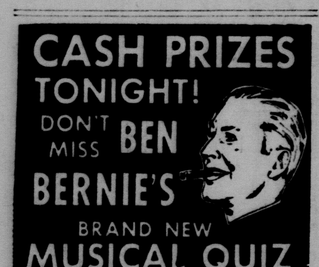

It was pointed out that the German government, in an apparent effort to conserve reserves, is doling out less and less food, with Hitler giving most of his soldiers and workers and what is left to the populace, leaving little for other distribution. Some 30 to 35 million persons in the Reich are rationed "substantially below the customary consumption level and perhaps not very much in excess of a bare subsistence level," said the experts.

Russia, including its acquisitions of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania and part of Finland, is not in a position to supply significant quantities of food to the Axis powers or to any other countries in Europe.

The experts corroborated German claims that food reserves were at as high a level last month as at the outbreak of the war over a year ago and that butter, eggs and meat stocks are larger than "at any time previously."

While the German-conquered nations of Denmark and the Netherlands may experience bread difficulties, the Reich has a reserve supply of grain that will allow present rations to be maintained and permit distribution of about 2,000,000 tons of such grains in those areas.

Despite its acquisition of Denmark and the Netherlands, however, the Reich has not yet acquired enough edible fats and oils to maintain fat rations more than eight months, the experts asserted.

Major Adams Says Most Of Bad Fires Could Be Prevented

Head Of Motor Police Warns People Of Pennsylvania To Exercise Vigilance

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 8.—Commenting on national fire prevention week being observed this week, State Motor Police Commissioner Lynn G. Adams urged all Pennsylvanians to mark its observance.

"Four out of five of all fires which caused $15,000,000 in damages in the state last year could have been prevented," he said.

"It follows," Colonel Adams declared, "that since 80 per cent of fire losses are preventable, the most effective agency in fire prevention is the careful individual.

"I feel strongly that in the exercise of vigilance and individual responsibility all Pennsylvanians can contribute materially in bringing about a sharp curtailment in fire frequency generally," he added.

Major Adams pointed out that the State Motor Police is "vested with important duties with regards to fire, including the investment of arson, and removal of fire hazards, which work is performed in co-ordination with chiefs of the various fire departments throughout Pennsylvania."

Magic Eye Tunes In On Chemistry

New Device Enables Analyses Of Chemical Contents By the Inexperienced

(International News Service)

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 8.—The "magic tuning eye" of the modern radio has been adapted to the field of analytical chemistry by a Lehigh University professor and will be made available this month for use in the laboratories of colleges and industry.

The new apparatus will enable chemists to analyze quickly and cheaply the manganese content of steel, for example, or the cromium content of chrome-tanned leather.

The instrument was developed by Dr. Earl J. Serfass, assistant professor of chemistry at Lehigh. About the size and appearance of a small portable radio, the unit is simple of construction and operation, inexpensive, accurate, and, above all, applicable to a great many highly specialized analytical problems.

The apparatus is important because it simplifies procedures in studying substances and in synthesizing new materials. It is important commercially because it replaces expensive equipment and permits certain test operations to be handled by inexperienced chemists.

EDWARD M. FISHER IMPROVING SLOWLY

Edward M. Fisher, of East Washington street, assistant road foreman of engines of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., who was seriously injured last week, in a fall from the roof of his home, is getting along nicely in the Jameson Memorial hospital.

Mr. Fisher sustained serious back injuries, and while improvement is slow, it is satisfactory, the attending physician states, and no serious consequences are expected to result.

A politician in office has one big advantage. When he tells a lie, it is done for purposes of State.

HOW TO GET A $100 LOAN IN 24 HOURS
No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Monthly payments to fit your income—Quick, friendly service
WOULD you like to get a cash loan without having to ask friends or relatives for a favor? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $300—without endorsers or guarantors—if you can make small monthly payments on your loan. We require no stocks or bonds, no wage or salary assignment. You borrow on your own signature; your friends are not asked to sign the papers with you.
Choose your own payment plan
See, in the table below, how you may repay your loan in convenient monthly installments which fit your own income. You may repay in small installments spread over 18 months. Or you may repay sooner to reduce the charges.
Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see, for instance, that monthly installments of $9.75 each will repay a $100 loan in full in 12 months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.97 a month for 18 months will also repay a $100 loan.
Same rate to everyone
Installments in the table cover everything. They include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law. Household has only this one rate—the same for everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.
No one else need know
When you borrow at Household, there is no need to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) So that your loan may remain your private affair, we do not ask friends or relatives about your credit. If you should be faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan, Household will show you every consideration. Last year we foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 20,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.
If a loan will help you, you are urged to look at the table again. Then phone or visit us for further information. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

"Four out of five of all fires which caused $15,000,000 in damages in the state last year could have been prevented," he said.

"It follows," Colonel Adams declared, "that since 80 per cent of fire losses are preventable, the most effective agency in fire prevention is the careful individual.

"I feel strongly that in the exercise of vigilance and individual responsibility all Pennsylvanians can contribute materially in bringing about a sharp curtailment in fire frequency generally," he added.

Major Adams pointed out that the State Motor Police is "vested with important duties with regards to fire, including the investment of arson, and removal of fire hazards, which work is performed in co-ordination with chiefs of the various fire departments throughout Pennsylvania."

Magic Eye Tunes In On Chemistry

New Device Enables Analyses Of Chemical Contents By the Inexperienced

(International News Service)

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 8.—The "magic tuning eye" of the modern radio has been adapted to the field of analytical chemistry by a Lehigh University professor and will be made available this month for use in the laboratories of colleges and industry.

The new apparatus will enable chemists to analyze quickly and cheaply the manganese content of steel, for example, or the cromium content of chrome-tanned leather.

The instrument was developed by Dr. Earl J. Serfass, assistant professor of chemistry at Lehigh. About the size and appearance of a small portable radio, the unit is simple of construction and operation, inexpensive, accurate, and, above all, applicable to a great many highly specialized analytical problems.

The apparatus is important because it simplifies procedures in studying substances and in synthesizing new materials. It is important commercially because it replaces expensive equipment and permits certain test operations to be handled by inexperienced chemists.

"What have you suddenly gone crazy about?" asked his wife, who was trying to learn something about the game.

EDWARD M. FISHER IMPROVING SLOWLY

Edward M. Fisher, of East Washington street, assistant road foreman of engines of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., who was seriously injured last week, in a fall from the roof of his home, is getting along nicely in the Jameson Memorial hospital.

Mr. Fisher sustained serious back injuries, and while improvement is slow, it is satisfactory, the attending physician states, and no serious consequences are expected to result.

HOW TO GET A $100 LOAN IN 24 HOURS

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Monthly payments to fit your income—Quick, friendly service

WOULD you like to get a cash loan without having to ask friends or relatives for a favor? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $300—without endorsers or guarantors—if you can make small monthly payments on your loan. We require no stocks or bonds, no wage or salary assignment. You borrow on your own signature; your friends are not asked to sign the papers with you.

Choose your own payment plan

See, in the table below, how you may repay your loan in convenient monthly installments which fit your own income. You may repay in small installments spread over 18 months. Or you may repay sooner to reduce the charges.

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see, for instance, that monthly installments of $9.75 each will repay a $100 loan in full in 12 months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.97 a month for 18 months will also repay a $100 loan.

Same rate to everyone

Installments in the table cover everything. They include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law. Household has only this one rate—the same for everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

No one else need know

When you borrow at Household, there is no need to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) So that your loan may remain your private affair, we do not ask friends or relatives about your credit. If you should be faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan, Household will show you every consideration. Last year we foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 20,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

If a loan will help you, you are urged to look at the table again. Then phone or visit us for further information. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

Reconsideration Of Case Is Asked By Askounes

In a petition filed with the Lawrence county court of quarter sessions, Peter Askounes, proprietor of Candyland on East Washington street, asks that the recent decision of Judge W. Walter Braham, which affirmed the order of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control board revoking the Candyland license be reconsidered, and that Judge Braham disqualify himself as the sitting judge in the case. A second petition asks that Judge Thomas W. Dickey be not summoned to sit upon the case as he is a colleague of Judge Braham's, and should not be asked to controvert or reverse Judge Braham's opinion.

Nothing quite like the petitions have been filed in the Lawrence county courts for some time. The petition is presented by a firm of attorneys of Greensburg, Pa. In the petition they set out that Judge Braham is a trustee of Westminster college, and that the minors who testified to purchasing liquor in Candyland were students of Westminster college. The petition sets out that Judge Braham, by reason of his trusteeship in Westminster college, has a personal interest in the case. A rule has been issued upon the State Liquor Control board by Judge Braham, returnable in 15 days, to show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

The history of the case is this. Some months ago agents of the State Liquor Control board preferred charges against Peter Askounes, proprietor of Candyland, averring that he had sold liquor to minors. The board first heard the case at a hearing in Erie, Pa. Later charges were brought against Askounes and his bartender, Stanley Miron Myers, charging them with sale to minors.

The case came before Judge Braham in the June term of criminal court and Askounes and Myers were found guilty and fined $300 and costs. Later the Liquor Control board, of which Hon. William S. Rial of Greensburg is the chairman, revoked the license of Candyland.

Still later Askounes appealed the decision of the control board and Judge Braham handed down an opinion affirming the boards revocation. The petitions now presented ask that the matter again be reconsidered and that Judge Braham disqualify himself and that Judge Dickey be not summoned to hear the petition for reconsideration.

The rule to show cause will probably be argued within a short time and it seems rather probable that the present action is being brought in order to get the case to the appellate courts of Pennsylvania.

Man Drowns In Shenango River

Charles Green, Of 319 West Falls Street, Drowns Before Help Can Reach Him

Charles Green, aged 47, colored, a roomer in the home of Mrs. Hattie McKeown, of 319 West Falls street, drowned in the Shenango river, near the West Washington street bridge, at 12:40 o'clock this morning, under rather peculiar circumstances.

Green was heard yelling for help from the bed of the stream as early as 12:30 o'clock by Peter Chill, who notified William Young, crossing watchman at the P. and L. E. railroad who in turn summoned police. Officers Rigby and Reese were sent to the scene, and when they arrived, the yells had ceased, and his body could not be seen.

They returned to the police station and got the city boat used for such emergencies, but on their return, found City Firemen Charles Brest, Wellington Pullford, and Assistant Chief George Harper there, and they had recovered the body and were applying artificial resuscitation. This was resorted to for an hour and twenty minutes. A physician, who was summoned, pronounced Green dead. He had been in the water about 25 minutes, it is stated. Lieut. James Steiner, and Officers Carl Wallace and George Sigler accompanied the other officers back to the scene of the drowning.

The body was taken to the J. G. Crunkleton Funeral Home. Green had no relatives here as far as can be learned. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

Many Apply For One-Year Period In U. S. Army

Sergeant Tighe Required To Keep Office Open Late Monday Evening

On the first day that one-year enlistments to the United States army were authorized here, which was Monday, the local recruiting office was the center of a great deal of activity.

Many interested young men came to the office, in the post office building, for information, and more than 50 were given applications on the first day. It was necessary for Sergeant Owen E. Tighe to keep the office open until 7:30 o'clock last evening to accommodate the applicants.

Applications are being taken from both white and colored young men. Most of the applicants are taking this opportunity to "get it over with" and not wait until they are drafted for one year.

Reconsideration Of Case Is Asked By Askounes

In a petition filed with the Lawrence county court of quarter sessions, Peter Askounes, proprietor of Candyland on East Washington street, asks that the recent decision of Judge W. Walter Braham, which affirmed the order of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control board revoking the Candyland license be reconsidered, and that Judge Braham disqualify himself as the sitting judge in the case. A second petition asks that Judge Thomas W. Dickey be not summoned to sit upon the case as he is a colleague of Judge Braham's, and should not be asked to controvert or reverse Judge Braham's opinion.

Nothing quite like the petitions have been filed in the Lawrence county courts for some time. The petition is presented by a firm of attorneys of Greensburg, Pa. In the petition they set out that Judge Braham is a trustee of Westminster college, and that the minors who testified to purchasing liquor in Candyland were students of Westminster college. The petition sets out that Judge Braham, by reason of his trusteeship in Westminster college, has a personal interest in the case. A rule has been issued upon the State Liquor Control board by Judge Braham, returnable in 15 days, to show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

The history of the case is this. Some months ago agents of the State Liquor Control board preferred charges against Peter Askounes, proprietor of Candyland, averring that he had sold liquor to minors. The board first heard the case at a hearing in Erie, Pa. Later charges were brought against Askounes and his bartender, Stanley Miron Myers, charging them with sale to minors.

The case came before Judge Braham in the June term of criminal court and Askounes and Myers were found guilty and fined $300 and costs. Later the Liquor Control board, of which Hon. William S. Rial of Greensburg is the chairman, revoked the license of Candyland.

Still later Askounes appealed the decision of the control board and Judge Braham handed down an opinion affirming the boards revocation. The petitions now presented ask that the matter again be reconsidered and that Judge Braham disqualify himself and that Judge Dickey be not summoned to hear the petition for reconsideration.

The rule to show cause will probably be argued within a short time and it seems rather probable that the present action is being brought in order to get the case to the appellate courts of Pennsylvania.

Man Drowns In Shenango River

Charles Green, Of 319 West Falls Street, Drowns Before Help Can Reach Him

Charles Green, aged 47, colored, a roomer in the home of Mrs. Hattie McKeown, of 319 West Falls street, drowned in the Shenango river, near the West Washington street bridge, at 12:40 o'clock this morning, under rather peculiar circumstances.

Green was heard yelling for help from the bed of the stream as early as 12:30 o'clock by Peter Chill, who notified William Young, crossing watchman at the P. and L. E. railroad who in turn summoned police. Officers Rigby and Reese were sent to the scene, and when they arrived, the yells had ceased, and his body could not be seen.

They returned to the police station and got the city boat used for such emergencies, but on their return, found City Firemen Charles Brest, Wellington Pullford, and Assistant Chief George Harper there, and they had recovered the body and were applying artificial resuscitation. This was resorted to for an hour and twenty minutes. A physician, who was summoned, pronounced Green dead. He had been in the water about 25 minutes, it is stated. Lieut. James Steiner, and Officers Carl Wallace and George Sigler accompanied the other officers back to the scene of the drowning.

The body was taken to the J. G. Crunkleton Funeral Home. Green had no relatives here as far as can be learned. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

Series All Even Teams To Battle In Final Game

Reds Will Send Paul Derringer To Mound, Detroit May Start Buck Newsom

WINNER TODAY IS NEW 1940 CHAMPS

By LAWTON CARVER
(International News Service Sports Editor)

CROSLEY FIELD, CINCINNATI, Oct. 8.—They play the world series here today.

They are going to settle her finally beyond further equivocation or conjecture after hauling back and forth from here to Detroit and back again for six previous games.

Throw out everything that has gone before. Forget what happened from last April to this October as the Cincinnati Reds finessed their way to the National League pennant and the Detroit Tigers got their's in the American League with blasts of power. They finally fire the shot that counts today—the one that will win for one club or the other by a margin of four games to three. This is the one, too, that was expected to give quiet and eager Duke Paul Derringer his second win in this series or establish a surly and snarling Buck Newsom among a half dozen who have scored three triumphs in a single series.

Derringer And Newsom

Derringer was formally nominated by Manager Bill McKechnie to go for the Reds, but Manager Del Baker of the Tigers was undecided on Newsom, although the latter was virtually certain to start, following the Tigers' defeat yesterday against Bucky Walters' five-hit, 4 to 0 shutout, which pulled the Reds up even for the third time.

The Tigers' have run out of games now after never being worse than tied in the won and lost column from the very first day. And they faced a Derringer who has enjoyed two days' rest since his victory of last Saturday, while they had to call on Newsom with only one day for recuperation from his spectacular shutout victory of Sunday.

In a few words, the Tigers ran out of games and pitchers at approximately the same time. They went with Schoolboy Rowe yesterday and he lasted less than an inning, whereup John Gorsica and Freddy Hutchinson were called in, the latter to be greeted by a home run over the left field wall by Walters' himself, as one of the 10 blows made by the Reds.

Godoy Winner Over Dorazio

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7—Arturo Godoy, the rugged Chilean who got licked twice during the summer by Joe Louis, today held a 10 round decision over Gus Dorazio, lumbering Philadelphia heavyweight.

With most of the fighting at close range, the slim crowd of 5,500 at the Philadelphia arena frequently stamped its feet and yelled for action. Dorazio fought only in spots, while Godoy did his best punching with a left hook at tight quarters. At 202 pounds, the Chilean outweighed the Philadelphian by eight pounds.

Bessemer-Union Gird For Clash

Shenango To Be At Full Strength For Friday Battle With Freedom High

TITANS TO PLAY AT YOUNGSTOWN

Union Township and Bessemer High are training like beavers as they gird for their crucial County Class B. game carded for Bessemer, Friday afternoon.

Both losers of heart-breaking decisions last week, the local rivals feel confident of rebounding with a victory. Bessemer was forced to accept a 9-6 defeat pinned by undefeated Greenville high while Union was shaded by Grove City in the closing minutes 13-7.

After scouting the Scotland Lancers, Coach Capezzuti, of Bessemer, remarked:

"Union is one of the most improved teams in the district. I expect one of the toughest games of the season next Friday."

Coach John Susko's force has been showing steady improvement. Against the the vaunted Grovers, Union was superior throughout the second half. A tough break in the final two minutes robbed the locals of a tie.

The starting time of the game will be announced later.

Shenango-Freedom

In excellent condition following a much needed rest, Shenango Township goes into action again next Friday afternoon against Freedom High, on Shenango Field, at 2:30 o'clock.

The East New Castle team has been playing minus the services of Captain Dudash, center, Colvert a classy tackle, Richard Donely and Cline, capable backs.

The quartet will be back in action this week, Coach Nocera said today. The game looms as one of the toppers on Shenango's schedule.

Titans-Youngstown

Westminister Titans run up against one of their toughest opponents, Youngstown College, Thursday evening in Youngstown.

The Ohioans ran rough schod over a strong Detroit Tech eleven last week while the Titans dropped to Slippery Rock.

Completing another classy grid card, New Castle returns to home soil to battle McKeesport High, Friday evening at 8 o'clock here, while Ellwood City goes against Monaca Saturday at Monaca.

Walters Hurls Five-Hitter To Even Up Series

Reds Ace Hurler Has Beaten Tigers Twice, Score Is 4 To 0; Walters Hits Homer

FINAL GAME IS ON CARD TODAY

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

CROSLEY FIELD, Cincinnati, Oct. 8.—Pitching a five hit shut out, Bucky Walters on Monday hurled his second victory over the Detroit Tigers in the world series to square it at three-all and bring on a seventh game today.

Having beaten the Tigers 5 to 3 with three hits in the second game, Walters came back yesterday to stifle the powerful American League champions by 4 to 0 before 30,481 loyal Red rooters.

Walters Hits Homer

Walters added a dramatic touch to his triumph by hitting a home run over the left field wall in the eighth inning for the Reds' final score of the game, which saw Schoolboy Rowe knocked out of the box for the second time by the Reds.

Rowe who started against Walters in the second game of the series last Thursday and promptly was shelled off the hill, lasted only one-third of an inning today, when, just as before, he again was relieved by John Gorsica.

The latter finally was lifted for a pinch hitter and Freddy Hutchinson finished, with the Reds gathering a cluster of 10 hits off the trio of Tiger flingers.

Reds Score Early

The Reds lost no time in sewing this one up. Bill Werber opened the game with his ninth hit of the series, a two-bagger to left, went to third on Mike McCormick's sacrifice and came home on Ival Goodman's single. Singles by Frank McCormick and Ripple brought Goodman home, whereupon Rowe stalked off the premises charged with his second defeat and Gorsica was called in. He started by striking out the veteran Jimmy Wilson, then ended the inning on Eddie Joost with an infield out.

But Gorsica was touched for a run in the sixth when Ripple and Wilson singled and Joost walked to load the sacks with none out.

McKeesport Tigers Play Here Friday

Renew Grid Relationship That Ended Back In 1932, Locals Training

McKeesport Will Send Supporters Here For Night Battle, Class AA Encounter

Renewing football relations after a lapse of eight years the New Castle High "Red Hurricane" grid machine will battle the Tigers of McKeesport High at Taggart Stadium Friday night under the mazdas. The kickoff is slated for 8 o'clock.

The last meeting of the two teams was back in 1932 and New Castle pasted a 20 to 0 setback on the McKeesportians. This is a Class AA game, but cannot mean much to McKeesport beaten by Johnstown 26 to 6. New Castle's only blemish so far is that 6-6 deadlock with Butler which may keep the locals out of the Class AA title running.

Locals Resume Training

Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh excused his regulars yesterday after a very brief limbering up and running through signals, but promised that the boys would face a tough workout this afternoon in preparation for the coming Friday night battle.

The New Castle team came out of the Sharon game without any serious injuries. Roberts and McKee both have bruised shoulders, but will probably start Friday night.

Stress Pass Defense

Pass defense is being stressed this week. The Tigers have a fine passing combination in Jackomas a fullback and Van Eman at left end. The Tigers have lost two games and have won three to date, piling up 71 points to 64 for their opponents.

The McKeesport team according to those who have scouted the squad, has a fine backfield made up of O'Hara, Brletic, Laura and Jackomas, with Goldberg a reserve back also a fine looking boy.

Ticket Manager Robert Mills today announced that the tickets for the coming game Friday night have been placed at the Sporting Goods store, 105 North Mercer street. Several hundred tickets have been sent to McKeesport, Mr. Mills announced.

The scores of the New Castle team at Youngstown were as follows—Thomas 196, J. Moore 191, J. Williams 191, Hill 188, Finley 188. Other scores—Gardner 187, Wally Bowers 182,, Kilbreath, 178, Ray Hammond 172,, Treva Bowers 159, G. William 158, Betty Ward 161. High man for the match was Davis of Youngstown with a 198 string.

LENN DEFEATS JOHNNY DEAN

Roscoe Toles Decisions Jack Trammel In 12-Round Battle

Johnny Dean, local middleweight, was decisively outpointed in a six-round battle, their third, at the Rayen-Wood auditorium, Youngstown last night. In previous bouts Lenn and Dean each had scored a decision.

In the final battle, a 12-rounder, Roscoe Toles, formerly of Warren, O., received the decision over Jack Trammel, Youngstown, in a heavyweight battle. Toles dropped Trammel for a count of nine in the ninth round.

Baby Kid Chocolate, Youngstown, received an undeserved award in eight rounds over Carmen Notch of Pittsburgh. They weighed 148 1-4 and 154 3-4 respectively. Notch deserved the decision.

Sammy Parratto, Pittsburgh, lost a four-round award to Mike Candella, former amateur of Youngstown. Although floored for a count of four in the second chapter, Parratto's aggressiveness and harder punching offset the one knockdown.

Arthur Donovan, New York City, refereed the main bout and fans liked his work. There was not one time during the final battle that he had to go through the fighters.

Johnny Corbett, Jimmy Jones and Tony Zill were the other referees.

Champion Zivic Present

Fritzie Zivic, conqueror of Henry Armstrong and the new welterweight champion of the world, helped to second Notch. He was accompanied to the fight by Manager Luke Carney and a crowd of Pittsburgh fans. Introduced to the crowd, Zivic was given a great ovation.

After the champion was introduced by Announcer McAvoy the latter gazed around the ring and witnessed sports writers and other fight officials from this city, Pittsburgh, Cleveland; in fact, all nearby cities.

After Fritzie was introduced McAvoy led off the introductions with Eddie Fritz, sports editor of the New Castle News.

Tom Walsh of Chicago, who brought Johnny Burns to fight Henry Firpo, took Toles to Youngstown. Others who were there were Jake Mintz, Pittsburgh; Louis Sacco, Beaver Falls; in fact, promoters from many cities.

The fights were staged by Ben Kleckner with Jack Laken, former promoter of Erie, Canton and Philadelphia, as an assistant.

Stock Market Is Listless Affair During Morning—Minor Gains Are Made

By LESLIE GOULD
(International News Service Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The stock market was a listless affair today, with the trend narrow and mixed in most sections. Prices generally were easier at the opening in a continuation of yesterday's late reaction, but several sections steadied later in the forenoon.

Steels were typical of most sections. Bethlehem and U. S. Steel both converted early fractional declines into equally small gains. Crucible common held at last night's close, but the preferred ran up a point.

Motors were mixed, with Chrysler down a fraction and General Motors up as much. Coppers, aviations, rails and rubbers also were mixed.

Chemicals, except for Du Pont, displayed a soft tone. Allied and Dow each lost more than a point at one time. American Smelting, Johns-Manville and Lima Locomotive were down a point or more before meeting support, while Case tumbled 2 on its first two sales.

Minor gains included those in Douglas, Lockheed, Union Pacific, General Electric, Goodyear, North American Co., and Continental Can.

ISE OF DOGS

The Isle of Dogs is a peninsula of London extending into the Thames opposite Greenwich. It contains large shipbuilding yards and docks. The name is derived from the fact that the king's hounds were formerly kept there.

Still, we have an idea that Washington and Jefferson might not have been very impressive on the radio.

Series All Even Teams To Battle In Final Game

Reds Will Send Paul Derringer To Mound, Detroit May Start Buck Newsom

WINNER TODAY IS NEW 1940 CHAMPS

By LAWTON CARVER
(International News Service Sports Editor)

CROSLEY FIELD, CINCINNATI, Oct. 8.—They play the world series here today.

They are going to settle her finally beyond further equivocation or conjecture after hauling back and forth from here to Detroit and back again for six previous games.

Throw out everything that has gone before. Forget what happened from last April to this October as the Cincinnati Reds finessed their way to the National League pennant and the Detroit Tigers got their's in the American League with blasts of power. They finally fire the shot that counts today—the one that will win for one club or the other by a margin of four games to three. This is the one, too, that was expected to give quiet and eager Duke Paul Derringer his second win in this series or establish a surly and snarling Buck Newsom among a half dozen who have scored three triumphs in a single series.

Derringer And Newsom

Derringer was formally nominated by Manager Bill McKechnie to go for the Reds, but Manager Del Baker of the Tigers was undecided on Newsom, although the latter was virtually certain to start, following the Tigers' defeat yesterday against Bucky Walters' five-hit, 4 to 0 shutout, which pulled the Reds up even for the third time.

The Tigers' have run out of games now after never being worse than tied in the won and lost column from the very first day. And they faced a Derringer who has enjoyed two days' rest since his victory of last Saturday, while they had to call on Newsom with only one day for recuperation from his spectacular shutout victory of Sunday.

In a few words, the Tigers ran out of games and pitchers at approximately the same time. They went with Schoolboy Rowe yesterday and he lasted less than an inning, whereup John Gorsica and Freddy Hutchinson were called in, the latter to be greeted by a home run over the left field wall by Walters' himself, as one of the 10 blows made by the Reds.

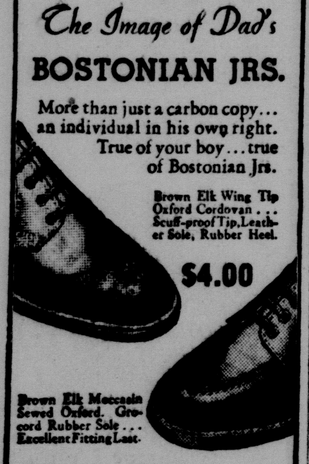

Godoy Winner Over Dorazio

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7—Arturo Godoy, the rugged Chilean who got licked twice during the summer by Joe Louis, today held a 10 round decision over Gus Dorazio, lumbering Philadelphia heavyweight.

With most of the fighting at close range, the slim crowd of 5,500 at the Philadelphia arena frequently stamped its feet and yelled for action. Dorazio fought only in spots, while Godoy did his best punching with a left hook at tight quarters. At 202 pounds, the Chilean outweighed the Philadelphian by eight pounds.

Bessemer-Union Gird For Clash

Shenango To Be At Full Strength For Friday Battle With Freedom High

TITANS TO PLAY AT YOUNGSTOWN

Union Township and Bessemer High are training like beavers as they gird for their crucial County Class B. game carded for Bessemer, Friday afternoon.

Both losers of heart-breaking decisions last week, the local rivals feel confident of rebounding with a victory. Bessemer was forced to accept a 9-6 defeat pinned by undefeated Greenville high while Union was shaded by Grove City in the closing minutes 13-7.

After scouting the Scotland Laners, Coach Capezzuti, of Bessemer, remarked:

"Union is one of the most improved teams in the district. I expect one of the toughest games of the season next Friday."

Coach John Susko's force has been showing steady improvement. Against the the vaunted Grovers, Union was superior throughout the second half. A tough break in the final two minutes robbed the locals of a tie.

The starting time of the game will be announced later.

Shenango-Freedom

In excellent condition following a much needed rest, Shenango Township goes into action again next Friday afternoon against Freedom High, on Shenango Field, at 2:30 o'clock.

The East New Castle team has been playing minus the services of Captain Dudash, center, Colvert a classy tackle, Richard Donely and Cline, capable backs.

The quartet will be back in action this week, Coach Nocera said today. The game looms as one of the toppers on Shenango's schedule.

Titans-Youngstown

Westminister Titans run up against one of their toughest opponents, Youngstown College, Thursday evening in Youngstown.

The Ohioans ran rough schod over a strong Detroit Tech eleven last week while the Titans dropped to Slippery Rock.

Completing another classy grid card, New Castle returns to home soil to battle McKeesport High, Friday evening at 8 o'clock here, while Ellwood City goes against Monaca Saturday at Monaca.

Sportsmen To Meet Tonight In V. F. W. Hall

Plans For Field Trials To Be Explained; Shoots On Wednesday Night

Members of the Lawrence County Sportsmen's association will meet at 8 p.m. tonight in the V. F. W. hall, according to George Sillman, president, who also announced that there will be a skeet and trap shoot Wednesday evening at the Fair grounds.

Committees in charge of the field trials, October 12, have designated the places where the various trials and exhibitions will be held Saturday at the Fair grounds and all arrangements for the meet will be explained at tonight's meeting.

Cornell will be playing Army in football for the second time when they meet on October 12 at West Point. The other time they opposed each other was in 1907 when Cornell upset a powerful Army eleven 14-10. Until that game Army had not even been scored upon that season.

Walters Hurls Five-Hitter To Even Up Series

Reds Ace Hurler Has Beaten Tigers Twice, Score Is 4 To 0; Walters Hits Homer

FINAL GAME IS ON CARD TODAY

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

CROSLEY FIELD, Cincinnati, Oct. 8.—Pitching a five hit shut out, Bucky Walters on Monday hurled his second victory over the Detroit Tigers in the world series to square it at three-all and bring on a seventh game today.

Having beaten the Tigers 5 to 3 with three hits in the second game, Walters came back yesterday to stifle the powerful American League champions by 4 to 0 before 30,481 loyal Red rooters.

Walters Hits Homer

Walters added a dramatic touch to his triumph by hitting a home run over the left field wall in the eighth inning for the Reds' final score of the game, which saw Schoolboy Rowe knocked out of the box for the second time by the Reds.

Rowe who started against Walters in the second game of the series last Thursday and promptly was shelled off the hill, lasted only one-third of an inning today, when, just as before, he again was relieved by John Gorsica.

The latter finally was lifted for a pinch hitter and Freddy Hutchinson finished, with the Reds gathering a cluster of 10 hits off the trio of Tiger flingers.

Reds Score Early

The Reds lost no time in sewing this one up. Bill Werber opened the game with his ninth hit of the series, a two-bagger to left, went to third on Mike McCormick's sacrifice and came home on Ival Goodman's single. Singles by Frank McCormick and Ripple brought Goodman home, whereupon Rowe stalked off the premises charged with his second defeat and Gorsica was called in. He started by striking out the veteran Jimmy Wilson, then ended the inning on Eddie Joost with an infield out.

But Gorsica was touched for a run in the sixth when Ripple and Wilson singled and Joost walked to load the sacks with none out.

Pirates Release Danny MacFayden

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8—Danny MacFayden, 34 year old right hand pitcher who has been performing in the major leagues for the past 15 years, has been released unconditionally by the Pirates, the Pittsburgh ball club announced today. He is a resident of Somerville, Mass.

Notre Dame's ban against women in the press box had to be lifted for the first time in the ten-year history of Notre Dame stadium in order for feminine movie stars attending the world premiere of "Knute Rockne—All American" and the College of the Pacific game, Oct. 4 and 5 respectively, to get to radio microphones between periods.

McKeesport Tigers Play Here Friday

Renew Grid Relationship That Ended Back In 1932, Locals Training

McKeesport Will Send Supporters Here For Night Battle, Class AA Encounter

Renewing football relations after a lapse of eight years the New Castle High "Red Hurricane" grid machine will battle the Tigers of McKeesport High at Taggart Stadium Friday night under the mazdas. The kickoff is slated for 8 o'clock.

The last meeting of the two teams was back in 1932 and New Castle pasted a 20 to 0 setback on the McKeesportians. This is a Class AA game, but cannot mean much to McKeesport beaten by Johnstown 26 to 6. New Castle's only blemish so far is that 6-6 deadlock with Butler which may keep the locals out of the Class AA title running.

Locals Resume Training

Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh excused his regulars yesterday after a very brief limbering up and running through signals, but promised that the boys would face a tough workout this afternoon in preparation for the coming Friday night battle.

The New Castle team came out of the Sharon game without any serious injuries. Roberts and McKee both have bruised shoulders, but will probably start Friday night.

Stress Pass Defense

Pass defense is being stressed this week. The Tigers have a fine passing combination in Jackomas a fullback and Van Eman at left end. The Tigers have lost two games and have won three to date, piling up 71 points to 64 for their opponents.

The McKeesport team according to those who have scouted the squad, has a fine backfield made up of O'Hara, Brletic, Laura and Jackomas, with Goldberg a reserve back also a fine looking boy.

Ticket Manager Robert Mills today announced that the tickets for the coming game Friday night have been placed at the Sporting Goods store, 105 North Mercer street. Several hundred tickets have been sent to McKeesport, Mr. Mills announced.

New Castle Wins Zelienople Shoot

Defeat Zelienople, Ellwood And New Brighton In Four-City Match

The New Castle rifle club journeyed to Zelienople, last night and won a four club match over Zelienople, Ellwood and New Brighton. The locals finished with a 949 total. The closest was Zelienople with 937.

The results—New Castle—Thomas 194, J. Williams 190, Fimley 189, Hill 189, J. Moore 187. Other New Castle scores—Gardner 180, Betty Ward 176, Mayberry 175, Ray Hammond 174, Wally Bowers 174, Treva Bowers 171, G. Williams 170.

Zelienople—Huffman 188, Tuma 187, Sewel 186, Wiser 183, McWhithey 193. Total 937.

Ellwood City—Milnes 186, Williams 181, Haas 174, Deemer 159, C. Thomas 194. Total 894.

New Brighton—Shanor 190, Carlton 189, Timmons 185, Vetter 184, McDermitt 179. Total 927.

Next monday the locals will shoot at Ellwood City. There will be a practice shoot on Thursday night at the Cathedral range. New Castle lost at Youngstown in a Penn-Ohio league shoot 962 to 954. Wilbur Thomas shot a 196 string.

The scores of the New Castle team at Youngstown were as follows—Thomas 196, J. Moore 191, J. Williams 191, Hill 188, Finley 188. Other scores—Gardner 187, Wally Bowers 182,, Kilbreath 178, Ray Hammond 172,, Treva Bowers 159, G. William 158, Betty Ward 161. High man for the match was Davis of Youngstown with a 198 string.

LENN DEFEATS JOHNNY DEAN

Roscoe Toles Decisions Jack Trammel In 12-Round Battle

Johnny Dean, local middleweight, was decisively outpointed in a six-round battle, their third, at the Rayen-Wood auditorium, Youngstown last night. In previous bouts Lenn and Dean each had scored a decision.

In the final battle, a 12-rounder, Roscoe Toles, formerly of Warren, O., received the decision over Jack Trammel, Youngstown, in a heavyweight battle. Toles dropped Trammel for a count of nine in the ninth round.

Baby Kid Chocolate, Youngstown, received an undeserved award in eight rounds over Carmen Notch of Pittsburgh. They weighed 148 1-4 and 154 3-4 respectively. Notch deserved the decision.

Sammy Parratto, Pittsburgh, lost a four-round award to Mike Candella, former amateur of Youngstown. Although floored for a count of four in the second chapter, Parratto's aggressiveness and harder punching offset the one knockdown.

Arthur Donovan, New York City, refereed the main bout and fans liked his work. There was not one time during the final battle that he had to go through the fighters.

Johnny Corbett, Jimmy Jones and Tony Zill were the other referees.

Champion Zivic Present

Fritzie Zivic, conqueror of Henry Armstrong and the new welterweight champion of the world, helped to second Notch. He was accompanied to the fight by Manager Luke Carney and a crowd of Pittsburgh fans. Introduced to the crowd, Zivic was given a great ovation.

After the champion was introduced by Announcer McAvoy the latter gazed around the ring and witnessed sports writers and other fight officials from this city, Pittsburgh, Cleveland; in fact, all nearby cities.

After Fritzie was introduced McAvoy led off the introductions with Eddie Fritz, sports editor of the New Castle News.

Tom Walsh of Chicago, who brought Johnny Burns to fight Henry Firpo, took Toles to Youngstown. Others who were there were Jake Mintz, Pittsburgh; Louis Sacco, Beaver Falls; in fact, promoters from many cities.

The fights were staged by Ben Kleckner with Jack Laken, former promoter of Erie, Canton and Philadelphia, as an assistant.

YOUNG YANKEES NAME OFFICERS

Members of the Young Yankees Athletic Club elected the following officers during their first meeting: Herman Sera, chairman; Frank Lombardo, treasurer; Wilbur Mash, secretary.

Plans are being outlined for the coming basketball season.

SPORTS WORLD RAMBLINGS

Sport trail snapshots:—Hillsville brought home the Suburban Baseball League championship by polishing off Youngstown, over the week-end. The Lawrence countians copped two out of three to snag the bauble. Joe Pepe hurled all three games, striking out 36 batters and yielding but 13 hits. . . .

Jim Rucker, the ex-Hurricane gridder who is now footballing for Shadyside Academy, is playing a bangup game for the Pittsburgh institution. . . . Frank "Tarzan" Criscl, former Western Reserve star, is on the sidelines due to an injury. The Croton avenue athlete won a tryout with the famous Chicago Bears but was forced to retire due to the leg injury.

New Castle Kiwanians, together with other clubmen, are favoring the bowling spot again following a lapse of several years. . . . To Goose: Score of New Castle High-Union Township High basketball games are as follows: 1933—New Castle 51, Union 24. Other results: New Castle 32, Union 13; New Castle 25, Union 22; New Castle 45, Union 18. . . .

Walter O. Briggs, owner of the Detroit Tigers, lavished unexpected bonuses throughout the season, his favorite being $125 suits to winning pitchers. . . . Cleveland's Municipal Stadium yielded but 22 homers in 47 games during the '39 campaign, 12 of the round trippers were registered by members of the Indians. . .

Georgetown U., of Washington, boasts of a 17 game winning streak. The Hoyas last dropped a grid decision in the last game of the '37 campaign. . . . Temple University's squad of 35 footballers contains 25 sophomores. . . . Lafayette spanked New York U. for the third time in four years last week-end, 9-7. . . .

Navy hasn't scored a football victory over Princeton since 1931. . . . Some major colleges have new head coaches at the helm this season. . . . Carnegie Tech will be in top physical condition for its coming clash with Holy Cross this week-end. . . . One of the news reels shows Tommy Harmon dashing 97 yards for a touchdown against California. The film also shows one of his pals mowing down a potential tackler via clipping. . . .

So far, we're calling the turn on grid games better than in past seasons. Which only proves that our luck is changing. To date, we have guessed 56 out of 69 clashes, barring two ties for an 82.2% average. Our best effort last week was calling Virginia's triumph of Yale and selecting Tennessee to bowl over Duke. . .

Stock Market Is Listless Affair During Morning—Minor Gains Are Made

By LESLIE GOULD
(International News Service Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The stock market was a listless affair today, with the trend narrow and mixed in most sections. Prices generally were easier at the opening in a continuation of yesterday's late reaction, but several sections steadied later in the forenoon.

Steels were typical of most sections. Bethlehem and U. S. Steel both converted early fractional declines into equally small gains. Crucible common held at last night's close, but the preferred ran up a point.

Motors were mixed, with Chrysler down a fraction and General Motors up as much. Coppers, aviations, rails and rubbers also were mixed.

Chemicals, except for Du Pont, displayed a soft tone. Allied and Dow each lost more than a point at one time. American Smelting, Johns-Manville and Lima Locomotive were down a point or more before meeting support, while Case tumbled 2 on its first two sales.

Minor gains included those in Douglas, Lockheed, Union Pacific, General Electric, Goodyear, North American Co., and Continental Can.

ISE OF DOGS

The Isle of Dogs is a peninsula of London extending into the Thames opposite Greenwich. It contains large shipbuilding yards and docks. The name is derived from the fact that the king's hounds were formerly kept there.

Still, we have an idea that Washington and Jefferson might not have been very impressive on the radio.

More than two-score compositions heralding the cause of Wendell Willkie have been received thus far at state Republican headquarters at Harrisburg. All the composers are confident that the adoption of their work and its rendition throughout the state would be the deciding factor in electing Willkie president of the United States.

NEW WILLKIE SONGS SWAMP HEADQUARTERS

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 8.—Its a rare day that Republican State Chairman James F. Horrance doesn't find a new G.O.P. campaign song in his mail.

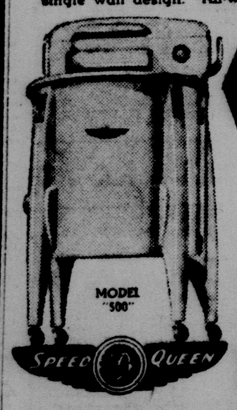

More than two-score compositions heralding the cause of Wendell Willkie have been received thus far at state Republican headquarters at Harrisburg. All the composers are confident that the adoption of their work and its rendition throughout the state would be the deciding factor in electing Willkie president of the United States.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESSEALL

Is it lawful to steal from the city . . . you all answer at once with a large NO . . . well we have people stealing from the city, every day a few cents are taken. We are referring to those boys who go around and suck nickles out of the parking meters. Not only are they stealing from the city but they are running the chance of killing themselves . . . it takes quite a bit of suckt1on to secure a nickle . . . it is possible that the nickle could pass the tongue and lodge in the wind pipe . . . thus before help could be found the boy would strangle to death . . . we therefore think it wise for the police to pick up such offenders and put them on probation . . . offenses much more minor are treated more severe . . . let's see some action.

The Neshannock Volunteer Fire department are badly in need of a truck . . . if they had had a truck yesterday the fire that took place on Euclid avenue would have been under control much sooner . . . the New Castle fire department answered the alarm but it was necessary to lay 1,500 feet of hose to reach the fire . . . if a booster truck from Neshannock had been available things would have been much more simple . . . the Neshannock Firemen have been trying to raise money for a booster truck but things have been going against them . . . we hope that in the future they will attempt this project again and we hope also that you folks, you good citizens will see your way clear to give them a little support . . . it doesn't take much from any one person if every one does his part . . . so here's to good luck and success members of the Neshannock Volunteer Fire Department.

This happens to be Fire Prevention Week . . . the entire United States are giving a lot of thought to this subject. It's time that we all inspect our homes, business houses, factories and what have you . . . see if rubbish has accumulated in the celler or attic . . . see that hot ashes are put in metal containers . . . watch that children don't play with matches . . . and you who smoke, don't do it in bed. Some folks like to smoke and read in bed . . . that's very bad . . . sleep is something a lot of folks can't control . . . Let's all look around and make use of Fire Prevention Week.

New people are constantly going ahead . . . some going in business for themselves . . . read the classified ads, they tell the story.

Directors Elected To Hospital Board

Annual Reports Submitted And State Appropriation Explanation Given

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 8—Dr. H. B. Anderson, Walter Baisch, Charles Z. Bell, J. A. Evans and William H. Goehring were selected directors at the annual meeting of the Ellwood City Hospital Association, held last night in the city building. Thirty-four members of the association attended.

The board will hold the annual election of officers at the regular meeting on Monday, October 21.

Annual reports were submitted and various matters discussed. The master of the state appropriation was discussed at length. It was brought out that the appropriation is received every 2 years and must be earned by the hospital through free patient days before grant is made. Three dollars per day is allowed for free patient days regardless of the cost to the hospital. The last appropriation amounted to $11,100.

According to the report, the last biennium which ended May 31., 1939 showed that the hospital had 1,328.87 free patient days or $3,986.62 over and above the state appropriation. The present biennium, which began June 1, shows that the hospital has already this quarter 507.8 free patient days or $1,523.40 over the appropriation.

This report is made in order that residents not familiar with the appropriation arrengements may understand that the money is not a gift but is already spent in free patients days when received.

The board will hold the annual election of officers at the regular meeting on Monday, October 21.

Annual reports were submitted and various matters discussed. The master of the state appropriation was discussed at length. It was brought out that the appropriation is received every 2 years and must be earned by the hospital through free patient days before grant is made. Three dollars per day is allowed for free patient days regardless of the cost to the hospital. The last appropriation amounted to $11,100.

According to the report, the last biennium which ended May 31, 1939 showed that the hospital had 1,328.87 free patient days or $3,986.62 over and above the state appropriation. The present biennium, which began June 1, shows that the hospital has already this quarter 507.8 free patient days or $1,523.40 over the appropriation.

This report is made in order that residents not familiar with the appropriation arrengements may understand that the money is not a gift but is already spent in free patients days when received.
